THAT'S HOW IT SHOULD BE DONE

It's a long way up to cleanliness, depicts three-year-old Ryan Pollard, as he conscientiously disposes of a candy wrapper into one of the Kelowna's refuse containers. He had no trouble handling the contents of the paper wrapper, but felt the inedible part of the goodie belonged in the receptacle designed for that purpose, thereby setting a good example to the rest of us with litter-bug tendencies. Gromyko's Reply — Quit Vietnam!

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the United States today the only way to end the Vietnam war is through "renunciation of military and other interference" in Vietnamese internal affairs.

Addressing the United Nations General Assembly, Gromyko made no direct reference to U.S. President Nixon's appeal to all members to use their influence to "end North Vietnam's position."

In a far-ranging policy speech, Gromyko made it clear that the Kremlin is firm in its support of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong guerrillas of South Vietnam. He defended the peace proposals of Hanoi as constructive.

"To think that the United States can obtain at the conference table what it has failed to CHICAGO (AP) — An elevated train loaded with homebound passengers rumbled the rear of another train at the height of the evening rush hour Thursday, injuring 273.

Soviet Trails NATO

ABOARD BONAVENTURE (CP) — A Soviet trawler today trailed Canadian ships participating in the five-country NATO strike fleet exercise named Peace Keeper. The trawler was seen about 400 yards off the Bonaventure as the aircraft carrier plodded through heavy seas off the southeast coast of Britain.

Aussies Battle

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — About 400 persons fought with police outside a court here today and dockyard workers went on strike when a union leader's son was called to answer charges of failing to undergo a medical examination for Australia's military draft.

Nasser Stirs High Command

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egypt's military intelligence chief took charge of the armed forces today in a major shakeup of the country's high command by President Gamel Abdel Nasser.

Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Sadek, head of military intelligence, was named chief of staff in place of Maj.-Gen. Ahmed Ismail Ali Thursday night in a decree issued by the president. Nasser is under constant medical treatment at his home in a Cairo suburb for a severe attack of influenza.

No reason was given for the reshuffle, which "concocted" at a time when Israeli and Egyptian forces are clashing almost daily across the Suez canal.

SHORT-LIVED POSTING The change in the armed forces command is the second this year. Ismail having held the post only since March when the highly-respected Gen. Abdel Monem Riad was killed by an Israeli shell during a canal battle.

VERNON MAYOR TO BREAK LAW AND NAME YOUNG OFFENDERS

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Mayor William Halina of Vernon says he plans to personally publicize the name of the next juvenile offender, even though it's against the law.

"When I did something wrong, there was a bit of discipline applied," said Mayor Halina, here for the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention Thursday.

"My father didn't give me a second chance."

The mayor said he knows the law states that names of young offenders under 18 cannot be published if they are convicted of a crime in juvenile court.

But he said he will publicize the next such case that comes to his attention—and he'll spend a few days in jail if he has to.

"This law seems to be made to protect wrong-doers, or else it's to protect their parents," said the Vernon mayor. "I'm not going to keep it secret any more."

The next one that gets into mischief, I'll announce it, and if it means going to jail I'll do it. Otherwise you're saying you'll tolerate this sort of thing."

The mayor's comments, made in an interview, came after Vernon city clerk Don Brown told Vernon council Tuesday night that 20 false fire alarms have been turned in this year in the Okanagan city at a cost of about $100 for each alarm.

Ottawa's Envoy Comes To B.C. For Dock Crisis

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of the federal government's top labor trouble-shooters will fly to Vancouver from Ottawa Saturday to direct crisis negotiations in an attempt to avert a strike on the British Columbia waterfront.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey Thursday ordered W. P. Kelly into the dispute after learning that direct talks had broken off between the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union and the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association.

The union announced that "a strike is imminent." The longshoremen earlier voted 96 per cent in favor of strike action, but set no date.

In a telegram to both the union and the association, Mr. Mackasey said:

"In view of the serious consequences of a work stoppage in this important industry, I have directed Kelly to proceed to Vancouver and meet with the parties, commencing at 2 p.m. Saturday (PDT) in the offices of the department of labor."

"I would expect operations to remain normal and both parties have full committees present and continue negotiations with the assistance of Kelly in an effort to reach a settlement in this dispute."

The move followed lengthy talks between the 3,200-member union and the association on a new contract to replace the collective agreement that expired July 31.

'High-Off-Hog' Canada Faces Mighty Anti-Pollution Bill

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadians have lived high off the hog while spoiling their country but the time to pay has arrived, J. J. Greene, federal minister of energy, mines and resources, said Thursday.

Mr. Greene, speaking to a news conference following the eighth annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, said governments will have to spend $2,000,000,000 in the next decade just to stop water pollution in Canada.

The ministers, meeting privately, placed primary emphasis on pollution and agreed to establish immediately an inter-governmental steering committee to advise the council on ways of improving avenues of consultation on pollution.

The committee will submit a preliminary report for submission to provincial premiers prior to the federal-provincial conference proposed for December. A final report will be prepared for the next meeting of the council in May.

Ontario's George A. Kerr said that by 1975 there will be no excuse for any polluting element to go unabated.

HOWE SOUND SATURATED

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — A 25-year-old West Vancouver man was reported missing Thursday night, in the wake of severe floods from heavy rain in the Howe Sound area northwest of Vancouver.

Swollen creeks washed out the Squamish highway in two places, isolating residents. Four persons were injured when their cars plunged into freshly cut ravines.

He left at 1:15 a.m. and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway's 30-foot bridge at way occurred at 1:45 a.m., an RCMP spokesman said.

Three Bodies Recovered In B.C. Plane

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — The bodies of the pilot, first officer and a female passenger from Yellow Springs, Ohio were recovered Thursday from the charred wreckage of a Pacific Western Airlines plane which crashed in a fog-shrouded rainstorm Wednesday night near this Vancouver Island community.

The Convair 440 aircraft, carrying 11 passengers and a crew of four, went down in heavy fog and rain as it was descending for a landing at Campbell River municipal airport on a flight from Vancouver.

Killed in the crash were the captain, Brian Bourne, 33, of Richmond, B.C., Val H. Hennell, the 57-year-old first officer from Vancouver and Janet Jones of Yellow Springs.

The 12 survivors suffered cuts and bruises and all were treated in hospital and released. Several were injured as they jumped 10 feet to safety from the aircraft.

Survivors credited the pilot with saving their lives by pulling up the nose of the twin-engine turbo-prop Convair as the aircraft slammed into trees, exploded and burned.

Coroner Dr. Richard Murphy has ordered an inquest.

Detroit Ups Auto Ante

DETROIT (CP-AP) — Chrysler raised its prices an average of $167 on its 1970 model cars Thursday, the least of the Big Three auto-makers. Ford went $108 higher Wednesday and General Motors announced a jump averaging $125 last week.

In preparation for the scramble in the market place, the three auto-makers scheduled their highest rate of output since late January. The trade publication Automotive News reported 193,846 new cars were being assembled this week.

All of Chrysler's seven U.S. assembly plants, four of Ford's 16 and one of GM's 23 were put on overtime for Saturday.

Ceasefire Set In Nigeria War

By REUTERS

The secessionist Nigerian state of Biafra today announced agreement with an Organization of African Unity decision to call for an immediate ceasefire in the Nigerian civil war.

A senior Biafran official, quoted by Radio Biafra, said the breakaway government also agrees with a call to Britain and the Soviet Union to "stop interfering in the country."

But the unnamed spokesman emphasized that his government and people of Biafra reject as unacceptable what he described as the unrealistic idea that the ceasefire should be accepted within the context of a unified Nigeria.

Man Missing In Floods

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — A 25-year-old West Vancouver man was reported missing Thursday night, in the wake of severe floods from heavy rain in the Howe Sound area northwest of Vancouver.

Swollen creeks washed out the Squamish highway in two places, isolating residents. Four persons were injured when their cars plunged into freshly cut ravines.

He left at 1:15 a.m. and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway's 30-foot bridge at way occurred at 1:45 a.m., an RCMP spokesman said.

"We are wondering whether or not he was caught in it. We don't know, but we had people scouting the highway, but there has been no sign of the car. We're quite concerned."

Highway department crews worked non-stop Thursday night in an effort to repair the demolished highway bridge at Strachan Creek. Materials for a Bailey bridge were brought in and a department spokesman said it was not known how long the road would be closed.

Tractors, bulldozers and graders also worked late in the night to clear the highway at another creek on the highway, where tons of mud, rocks and stumps slid down the hillside, blocking the road.

European Forces Reduced By Half

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cadieux today announced that Canada's land and air forces in Europe will be reduced to 5,000 from a present strength of about 9,800 by the fall of next year.

Mr. Cadieux said the government also has decided to discontinue the nuclear strike role of Canada's air division in Europe by January of 1972.

The mechanized brigade group stationed in Germany will drop the nuclear role of its Honest John artillery battery when the brigade is reorganized next year.

Dealing with Maritime Command, the defence minister told a news conference that the carrier Bonaventure and the escort maintenance ship Cape Scott will be de-commissioned in 1970.

Virtually all of Canada's Atlantic naval forces will continue to be earmarked for NATO in the event of an emergency.

As a consequence of a sweeping reorganization of the forces announced by Mr. Cadieux, three well-known infantry regiments will be dropped from the regular force: The Canadian Guards, The Queen's Own Rifles of Canada and the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada.

... strength sliced

Canada's air defence forces will remain "much as they are" for the present, Mr. Cadieux said in a prepared statement.

Still A Meaningful Role

This means that while opting out of the nuclear role in Europe, Canada has decided to retain its nuclear capability in North American air defence.

Canada's NORAD-assigned Voodoo interceptors can carry nuclear weapons.

Plans are to "phase out" the mechanized brigade group and the air division in Germany by the fall of 1970, when collocated land-air elements will be established under one headquarters in southern Germany.

These will be at Lahr and Baden Soellingen, where the air division is currently based. The brigade group is at present based in and near Soest, on the north German plain.

The reorganized forces will use present equipment and will have a combined total strength of about 5,000.

"The supreme allied commander Europe has assured me that this provides a structure which will allow Canadian forces to continue to fulfill in Europe a meaningful though reduced role," said Mr. Cadieux.

The changes announced today were in line with Prime Minister Trudeau's announcement April 3 that Canada would carry out a "planned and phased reduction" of its forces assigned to the Atlantic alliance in Europe.

Mr. Trudeau said the government intended to reorient its defence policy, putting greater stress on North America defence and protection of Canadian sovereignty.

Mr. Cadieux said the force he was outlining is considered by his advisers to be "a viable force capable of meeting the tasks set by the government."

Extensive consultations had taken place with Canada's NATO partners on the intended changes. However, Mr. Cadieux did not say the other alliance members had acquiesced in the decisions announced today.

Police Chief 'Saw No Blood' On Body In Kennedy's Car

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Police Chief Dominick J. Arena says he saw no blood on Mary Jo Kopechne's body when it was removed from Senator Edward M. Kennedy's submerged car July 19, the day after the accident.

District Attorney Edmund D. Dinis declared Thursday he had information that there was blood in her mouth and nostrils and on her clothing. He raised the question whether this was "consistent with death by drowning."

Arena, who was present when a skin diver recovered the body, said: "When she was in my arms, waiting to put her on the boat, I saw no indication of blood."

Dr. Donald R. Mills, medical examiner for the district, who certified the cause of death as drowning, declined to comment on the Dinis statement.

The district attorney made his assertion in amendment to a petition in the common pleas court of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where he is seeking exhumation of the 28-year-old secretary's body for an autopsy.

Judge Bernard C. Brominski set a hearing on the petition for Sept. 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopechne oppose exhumation.

Indonesia Sets Prisoners Free

JAKARTA (Reuters) — The Indonesian government will release 29,000 Communist prisoners by the end of this year, army sources said today.

The prisoners are some of the 70,000 alleged Communist fighters rounded up after the 1965 Communist coup attempt. The sources said they were classified as "C" category—those who had no knowledge of the coup attempt.

The government's decision to release the prisoners, apparently was made because of financial difficulties in feeding them, observers said.

GIRDLES SAG OTTAWA (CP) — Girdle bells are shipping and garden construction. Dominion Bureau of Statistics report reveals, Shipments of garter bells during the second quarter of 1969 declined to 15,111 dozen from 29,302 in the 1968 period.

Canada's Welfare Gaps 'Mostly In OAP Field'

Health Minister John Munro said Thursday in Washington the greatest need for reform in the Canadian welfare program is in the area of benefits, such as the old-age pension field. Munro, who left Thursday for Ottawa after visiting three countries in 10 days, said that while Canadian benefits in most cases are higher than in the United States, Sweden spends 25 per cent more than Canada in this field.

Municipal taxation in British Columbia is still in the horse-and-buggy days, delegates to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention were told Thursday in Kamloops. H. Everett Brown, retiring in February after 15 years as deputy minister of municipal affairs, said local government must bring its property taxing procedures into this century. "It seems surprising that municipalities still operate their major source of revenue, the property tax, in a manner suitable for the turn of the century," Mr. Brown said.

President Hamani Diori of Niger left Ottawa Thursday. With the assurance that the Canadian government will participate in three Nigerian projects to help the African nation "break out of isolation."

Dr. Benjamin Spock, denouncing President Nixon's planned troop withdrawals from South Vietnam as a "fraud," announced Thursday a series of protests this fall, including a 36-hour March Against Death in Washington. Spock told reporters 500,000 persons are expected to take part in the Nov. 14-15 march from Arlington Cemetery past the White House and to the Capitol. The baby expert contended that the announcement by Nixon that 35,000 more troops will be withdrawn was a "sop" and a "fraud" to weaken anti-war Vietnam war demonstrations.

An official of the Swedish Institute of Cinematography says in Montreal recent studies indicate that the harmful effects on adults of so-called obscene movies have been grossly exaggerated. Lief Furuhjelm, who is also a member of an investigating commission studying censorship in Sweden, told a meeting of provincial censors in Canada that unless there is better justification for their existence government censors should be abolished.

A spokesman for the Viet Cong guerrillas of South Vietnam said Thursday that President Nixon's peace plan at the United Nations on Thursday, saying: "We have repeatedly declared that the United Nations has no business dealing with the ... welfare gaps

Vietnam war." Duong Ding Thao made the statement after a listless 34th session of the Paris peace talks.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania has been invited to pay a state visit to Canada from Sept. 29 to Oct. 2, the government announced today. The president will be accompanied on his visit, his first to Canada, by the minister of state for foreign affairs, Stephen Mhande, and by Rashid Abdallah, agriculture minister in the Zanzibar Revolutionary Council.

Frederick Varley, one of the original members of the Group of Seven artists, was buried in Kleinburg, Ont. Thursday in a quiet ceremony at the McMichael Conservation Collection of Art. He was buried beside Arthur Lismer, a long-time friend and fellow member of the group, and within the shadows of the McMichael galleries which house many of Mr. Varley's paintings and drawings.

Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. Thursday announced in Vancouver plans for an $80,000,000 forest conversion project to be built at northern coastal Bella Coola. President Robert G. Rogers said in a news release there is a need to locate conversion facilities as close as possible to existing timber areas held by the company.

Georgia Straight, a Vancouver weekly newspaper catering to the city's hippie element, Thursday was fined $1,500 on charges of counselling a criminal offense. Dan McLeod, the paper's editor-in-chief, was fined $500 and placed on probation for three years following conviction on a similar charge. They had pleaded not guilty in provincial court to counselling the commission of an offense—the cultivation of marijuana — in an article published in the paper's March 29-April 3 edition.

A Calgary truck driver was charged with criminal negligence in Ashcroft Thursday less than 24 hours after an elderly man was killed and 17 others injured when a Greyhound bus and a transport truck collided. The charge was read to Cortez Nelson Lucas, 32. He was released on bail of $500 and is scheduled to appear in court here Sept. 26.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy lashed out in Boston at the Nixon administration Thursday night, charging it has failed to change the war in Vietnam and that on the home front it is cutting down on medical research and making false economies. Kennedy was the principal speaker at a dinner in honor of Dr. Sidney Farber, retiring president of the American Cancer Society and one of the world's leading researchers in the treatment of leukemia.

A pioneer Newfoundland diarist, Capt. Joe MacGillivray, died in an Athens hospital last week from injuries received in a fall, it was learned in St. John's, Thursday. Capt. MacGillivray and pilot Jim Collins inaugurated the first airmail service to northern Newfoundland and Labrador in 1947.

A small quantity of the rarest dirt on earth left Kennedy Airport Thursday in a small blue and green overnight bag. Two British scientists carried the bag onto a British Overseas Airways Corp. jet inside, carefully sealed in plastic containers, were 105 grams of moon dust brought to earth by the Apollo 11 astronauts. Dr. Stuart Agrell of Cambridge University and Dr. Peter Clegg of Queen Mary College of the University of London were among the researchers from many countries who have been given moon samples by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Bennett Aims At Industry

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett leaves for Europe Sunday on a trip aimed at bringing industry and investment to British Columbia. The premier said Thursday he will meet government and business leaders in England, Germany, and France before returning to B.C. Oct. 9.

SETTLE DISPUTE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bakery workers Thursday accepted a compromise settlement in their dispute with Mrs. Willman's Cakes Ltd. in the Vancouver suburb of Burnaby. However, the company has not yet announced its decision on the proposal by provincial mediation officer Clark Gilmore. The Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union had rejected a company demand that a shop steward be dismissed. Mr. Gilmore suggested that the steward remain, but that future grievances be referred to David Ritchie, secretary of the Bakery Employers' Association.

STUDENT SUPPORT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The student council at Simon Fraser University Thursday endorsed demands of the stormy department of political science, sociology and anthropology. The decision was taken at a meeting of more than 550 students on the suburban Burnaby campus. Among the department's demands are an end to the five-man trusteeship placed over the PSA department by the university administration and recognition of Prof. Mordecai Breiberg as department head. Students and faculty members of the department are to hold what they call a "strike vote" on the issue Monday.

CALL TO DINNER

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 2,500 people in Vancouver want to sit down to dinner with Prince Philip on Oct. 28 and sponsors of the function have been forced to change buildings. Prince Philip is scheduled to visit British Columbia for six days, starting in Kimberley Oct. 24. An official of the Pacific Region of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews said Thursday night that tickets to the dinner will cost $12.50.

Al Fatah Claims Assaults Against Israeli Positions

From AP-Reuters

Al Fatah claimed its guerrillas made their heaviest attacks ever on Israel Thursday night, but Israel reported only one skirmish in which it said four Arab saboteurs and no Israelis were killed.

A spokesman for Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla organization, said in Amman, capital of Jordan, that hundreds of commandos attacked 14 positions along a 30-mile front in the Jordan Valley. A later communication said the raiders wiped out two Israeli observation posts and three advance posts in the central valley.

The spokesman said the raiders used a variety of weapons, including heavy mortars, and that the Israeli Air Force was forced to send in jets for night strikes against them.

"This must be a joke," said the Israeli army spokesman, Lt.-Col. S. Rubaivel Shalev. "Maybe the Fatah can run air sorties at night when they can't even see the targets but we certainly cannot."

Later the Israeli command reported a skirmish after midnight 25 miles north of the Dead Sea. It said an Israeli patrol killed four Arabs near the Damia Bridge across the Jordan.

A Jordanian Army spokesman reported Israeli mortars and machine-guns fired on Jordanian positions in the southern Jordan Valley, but he said there were no Jordanian casualties.

In Cairo, President Nasser replaced the Egyptian army's chief of staff and the navy's commander without explanation. Nasser is in bed with what has been described as a case of acute influenza.

The Middle East news agency said Nasser had appointed Lt.-Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Sadek chief of military intelligence since 1966, as his new army chief of staff, while Brig. Mahmoud Fahmi Abdel Rahman was made commander of the navy.

The Israeli government announced tough new commerce and travel regulations for the city of Hebron, on the occupied West Bank. A spokesman said the new rules forbid residents to work in Israel, to travel either in Jordan or Israel and to trade in either of the two states.

He said the restrictions were ordered because of a growing number of sabotage incidents in the city.

Elsewhere:
The Israeli Army loaded the bodies of two Egyptian pilots on an International Red Cross launch and sent them across the Suez Canal to Egypt.

King Faisal of Saudi Arabia said he was "astounded" to hear President Nixon tell the UN General Assembly that he wanted self-determination for the people of South Vietnam without saying he favored it for Palestine's Arab refugees.

N. Zealand More Interested In Holyoake's Canada Trip

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The forthcoming visit to Canada by New Zealand Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake is being widely featured in the New Zealand press as more interesting than his visit to the United States.

Holyoake is due in Ottawa Sunday and leaves Canada on his return to New Zealand Friday, Sept. 26.

He also is to visit President Nixon in Washington and the United Nations in New York.

It is the first visit by a New Zealand prime minister to Canada since the 1950s.

The Wellington correspondent of the New Zealand Herald of Auckland writes:
"There are promising new foundations for improved co-operation between Canada and New Zealand, which have been born out of a reduction in Canadian involvement in Europe and a corresponding increase in interest in the Pacific."

In his farewell statement before leaving on his overseas mission, Holyoake said his visit reflected a desire on the part of both Canada and New Zealand for a more dynamic partnership.

Holyoake said he would be particularly interested to hear what Trudeau had to say about the Pacific, including the recent Canadian initiative regarding Communist China and the role Canada could play in the implementation of a settlement in Vietnam and in the post-war reconstruction there.

In his discussions with the Canadians, he said he would also cover important aspects of bilateral relations. A review of the 1932 trade agreement between the two countries, Holyoake added, had already begun at the official level.

NEW FINANCING PLAN

B.C. Municipal Leaders Want Victoria Guarantee

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Municipal leaders today asked the British Columbia government for a provincial guarantee rather than their own backing for a proposed municipal finance authority.

Delegates to the annual Union of B.C. Municipalities convention approved a resolution from Victoria city council and several other municipalities requesting that the province back all bonds sold for capital funds by a vote of 625 to 1.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, who introduced the plan for a board appointed by the 28 regional districts in B.C. with their own money guaranteeing bonds sold, said after the vote: "There is nothing so eloquent as a majority." He had no other comment on the vote.

Wednesday night, reaction to the plan ranged from approval to qualified opposition and most mayors said they would like time to fully consider the proposal.

Catholics In Londonderry Agree To Down Barricades

BELFAST (AP) — The Roman Catholics of Londonderry, the town where the Catholic-Protestant war erupted last month, agreed today to tear down their barricades Monday.

They will be replaced by thin white-painted lines to keep the feuding Protestants and Catholics apart.

Sean Keenan, chairman of the Derry Citizens-Defence Association in the Catholic Bogside district, told reporters after 24 hours of talks with the British Army that:

—Military police will not try to arrest anyone in Bogside for anything done before the barricades came down.

—Military police will be allowed to enter the area in answer to emergency calls, but other troops will stay out.

—The Bogside's vigilante police force will continue to operate in the district.

AWAIT SPEECH
Keenan said the barriers would not be removed until Monday because Rev. Ian Paisley, the Protestant militant, is scheduled to hold a meeting in Londonderry Sunday, and perhaps a few of his followers might try to make their way into the Bogside.

British Defence Minister Denis Healey Thursday began a tour of the British Army units keeping peace in Northern Ireland. As he was leaving a Catholic section of Belfast, a scuffle broke out between 200 shouting people and the rear men in Healey's armed army escort. No injuries were reported.

Trouble In Air Over Paris As Controllers Work To Rule

PARIS (Reuters) — Air traffic controllers for the Paris region today decided to work by the book in a move that could add chaos in the air to the monster transportation paralysis on the ground.

The controllers said they would allow landings and take-offs at Le Bourget and Orly airports only every 10 minutes.

This is the delay required by the rules. But in practice a plane takes off or lands at the airports every three minutes.

The controllers, demanding better working conditions, set no time limit for their slowdown. If extended, it could cause severe backlogs in air traffic to the French capital.

Meanwhile, road traffic jams built up for miles around Paris as harassed commuters struggled through fog patches and rain to beat subway and bus strikes, now in their fourth day.

In the city itself main thoroughfares were choked and parking was a nightmare although traffic police appeared to be turning a blind eye to all but the most blatant offences.

Union leaders were meeting management representatives during the day to try to break an apparent deadlock on improving working conditions. But there was little sign of an early end to the stoppage—or to the week-long industrial unrest in France.

... AND THESE ARE ONLY THE BEGINNING

Piano student Carol Grant, 12, stares in dismay at a pile of examination papers brought by two young Toronto Royal Conservatory of Music teachers. Leo Pageau, left, and Graham Welch, have set up a studio in Kelowna to teach piano and also conduct examinations for younger students. The two escaped the big city atmosphere of Eastern Canada to travel in B.C., conducting examinations and thinking about research into teaching methods. Their classes in Kelowna started this week with a healthy roster of pupils. They arrived in the area in July, and it didn't take them long to choose this location for a studio. (Courier Photo)

They Train Boys And Develop Men

By BOB CAMPBELL
Courier Staff

No matter what cadet service arm a youth chooses, he just has to come out a better human being.

So say Capt. E. S. Dickens, commanding officer of the 903 British Columbia Dragoons cadets, and Lt. Norman Sales, cadet liaison officer.

"They take to training like ducks to water," they say of today's raw recruit, even though training is "tougher and more sophisticated now."

For that very reason and because of the technical and personal worth of its officers, cadet training produces the kind of character values not normally fostered in community or even home environment.

"It's a two-way street," adds Lt. Sales. "They have an opportunity to look us over, and we do the same." Most of the new recruits are initially attracted by curiosity through a friend already in the corps.

"We encourage them to come out and look us over," says Lt. Sales.

Parades are held at the Kelowna Armories once a week and, providing potential cadets are between 13 and 18 years of age and have parental or guardian consent, can sign up for a one year stint.

"Training is based on a three-year period," adds Capt. Dickens, although there's enough character-building activities in the first 12 months to neutralize any sense of time. Besides the inevitable rudiments of discipline and drill, green recruits are indoctrinated into the mysteries of wireless operation, survival, combat and gunnery training, field cooking and camping, makeshift map-making and orientation, deportment and dress.

All knowledge gained is tested and put to good use through periodic field exercises. The new boys are also filled in on the history of the cadet corps which is the junior branch of its famous big brother, the British Columbia Dragoons, the Okanagan's own light armored regiment.

BIG BROTHER

"We couldn't put anything on without them," commented Capt. Dickens. With sponsorship aid of the regiment, the cadet corps tied for third place out of 44 units in the province.

But being a cadet isn't all drill and callouses. Besides the fundamental benefits of physical and mental well-being, some of the more defined advantages include leadership and promotion based on scholastic standing.

"If any of them neglect their studies, we ask them not to come back," one of the rules of the game. Even qualifying for the Master Cadet award, the highest in the squadron, is based on scholastic ability and must be signed by the principal of the recipient's school before it can be presented. Cadets can rise as high as captain in rank and then qualified as an officer cadet in the regular forces.

ADVANCEMENT

"Some tremendous officers during the war came from cadet material," stressed Lt. Sales.

Cadet training also affords musical opportunities with the BCD Pipe Band, which has its counterparts in navy and air force cadet corps; as do all the other benefits.

With the exception of B Squadron, British Columbia Dragoons, cadet age groups for all three branches are between 13 and 18 years. But unlike the junior units, B Squadron is predicated on a reserve military career, with age groups from 16 to 24 years and a greater training scope. Where cadets and cadet officers receive no pay, reserve force officers are subsidized by the government. All cadet branches receive their uniforms free and have access to military equipment and training facilities.

ROOM FOR MORE

"We like to get as many cadets as we can," says Capt. Dickens, although he admits his squadron has "room for 60" which is considered full strength. "We don't get too many drop-outs." Interest in the corps is "holding its own," he says, and all three cadet branches in the city have been able to maintain their quotas.

He attributes continued interest in cadet corps to greater maturity and the fact that today's youth are "very keen." The lowering of the age group to 13 years has also had some beneficial effect on recruiting, together with wider parental acceptance.

"We get very good support from parents," Capt. Dickens emphasized, although he'd like to see more parental participation in cadet functions. "What we're trying to instill in these youngsters is pride in their own country."

always a line of cars stretching several blocks from where they try and seep into Richter Street. The two lane street becomes a three-lane thoroughfare as cars pull onto the gravel to form an impromptu "right hand turn lane."

Two brief power failures in the city Thursday night caught most residents with their candles down, but the short-lived black-out engendered a sigh of relief for those contemplating a long kerosene-lit evening and a cold midnight snack. Lightning was blamed for the failures which both lasted only seconds.

Residents in vicinity of Bernard Avenue and Ellis Street must be slightly bell-happy today, and numbly wondering for whom the bell did toll all night. The clanking began early Thursday evening and couldn't be stopped until the hands on a time lock in the Royal Bank pointed in the appropriate direction this morning.

Avoid the main streets seems to be the theme for many drivers leaving the downtown area between 4:30 and 5 p.m. on week nights. Although the traffic still piles up on Bernard and Harvey Avenues some mini-traffic jams are evident on such streets as Doyle Avenue. Doyle is usually fairly quiet but at 5 p.m. there is almost

Two Thefts, Break-In Reported Overnight

Police are investigating a break-in and two incidents of theft reported during the night.

RCMP said Mervyn Motors was broken into sometime during the night and an estimated $76 stolen.

Thirty-six dollars was stolen from a wallet belonging to Gordon Hudson, Kelowna, while it was left on the front seat of his car downtown at 3 p.m. Thursday. Mr. Hudson said he was away from his car for a short time only.

A local service station reported a blue and white 1966 sedan with Alberta licence plates had stolen gasoline Wednesday night.

Horse Dies In Collision

Two people received minor injuries when the car in which they were riding collided with a horse on Highway 97 north of Westbank about 12:30 a.m. today.

The house was killed in the crash.

Driver Terence O'Toole and an unidentified passenger were riding in the vehicle when two horses ran onto the highway. The O'Toole vehicle struck one doing an estimated $1,000 damage.

Self Help Meets

Dan Campbell, minister of social welfare and municipal affairs, will be petitioned to "live up" to pre-election promises of increased social assistance.

The reminder will come from the Association of Self Help, a newly formed organization of local social assistance recipients designed to accomplish what the title of the organization implies.

Recent meetings of the group in Kelowna and Rutland also explored back-to-school costs relating to low income families, with school board chairman, Ken Fulk, and secretary-treasurer, Fred Macklin, participating in a question and answer session. Also on the cost agenda were outlays for home economics, music and physical education, "sensitive areas" for families on social assistance.

The sharing of ideas provided a "greater mutual appreciation" of problems experienced by both school board and members of the organization.

The organization will continue to meet on a monthly basis under the guidance of the Central Okanagan Community Social Planning Council.

New Teachers In Kelowna Find More Freedom

By FRANK LILLQUIST
Courier Staff

The worth of a teacher extends beyond his or her, written qualifications and new staff added this year to school district 23 (Kelowna) bring with them a wealth of first-hand experience extending from South Africa, to England, to "down under."

Like all years, the teaching staff has expanded to accommodate rising population, resignations, retirements and transfers. There are more than 100 teachers new to Kelowna area schools this year.

Two of the teachers, the husband and wife team of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davis, are back in Kelowna schools after two years in the African educational system.

Working as a teacher-assistant program for external aid Mr. and Mrs. Davis taught in Gaberone, the capital of Botswana, a country "just north of South Africa."

Mr. Davis isn't new to the Kelowna area, having taught in the Okanagan before going to Africa, but his wife Vivian is steady in the district 23 system for the first time this year.

Prior to going to Africa Mrs. Davis taught in Saskatchewan and substituted in the Kelowna area.

Now in her "little rural schoolhouse" in Okanagan Centre where she teaches Grades 1 and 2 she recalls her African experience as a low pressure way of life.

"We find the pressure is far greater on a teacher here than in Africa," Mrs. Davis said.

"Probably our whole way of life is faster and we expect youngsters to learn more."

The technology of North America speeds up a teacher's pace with constant companions like the television set and radio increasing the vocabulary of students far more than their counterparts in Africa.

CHAMBER BRIEFS

Kelowna Leads The Okanagan In Tourist Gathering Powers

With fewer tourist promotion facilities and smaller convention centres, Kelowna managed to attract far more tourists during the summer than the other two major Okanagan centres. The final chamber of commerce count was released to the executive Thursday and showed that tourist inquiries were up here by 450 over last year. In Penticton, inquiries at chamber information booths were down 7,500; they were down by 2,000 in Vernon. Kelowna chamber manager Bill Stevenson said. Both other cities have more tourist booths and bigger provincial government grants to promote tourism, he added.

Director Ernie Cowan suggested an idea that caught on with the executive immediately—signs in local store windows advertising the current exchange rate on United States funds. The exchange, Mr. Cowan said, would be kept standard at an even figure—about seven per cent—so there would be no competition among local merchants.

Ald. Ron Wilkinson was the first of the city aldermen to attend the chamber meeting on a rotating basis. The chamber convinced the city more than one alderman should attend the meetings to keep the entire council informed on what the executive is doing. King Cole, the Spokane "sparkplug" who boosted Kelowna's merchants into a downtown renewal scheme several months ago had his words to say about the Blue Angels glass-shattering incident in August. "I hope you don't think I sent the jets to accelerate your improvement program," he wrote to the chamber.

Kelowna's reputation for drawing industry to the Okanagan has spread as far as Ottawa. Three Kimberley industrial commissioners visiting here last week told Kelowna chamber manager Bill Stevenson they had been advised in Ottawa to come here to learn how to attract industry. Their three-day tour of Kelowna industrial areas was in accordance with the recent declaration of Kimberley as a "designated area" under a federal industrial incentives grants program. The Okanagan has been removed from the aid scheme.

Vice-president Ron Alexander, who spent the summer at UBC was teaching a teacher's course, not studying one, as reported last Friday in the Courier.

Woman Uses False Identity Hearing Ends In Confusion

A last-minute confession following a conviction for hit-and-run has launched a police investigation about a woman who pleaded guilty and was sentenced under an assumed name.

Phyllis Olive Keith, Westbank, admitted, after being fined $250 and having her licence suspended for six months, she did not have a driver's licence and at the time of her arrest produced a licence belonging to a friend.

She was arrested and tried under the name of Doreen Mycock. The hit and run charge was laid Sept. 18 when the vehicle driven by Miss Keith struck another car turning left on a Kelowna street. When approached by the driver of the other car the Keith vehicle drove away.

A description of the car and paint scrapings on the side of the other vehicle led to the apprehension of Miss Keith.

Judge D. M. White ordered her held in custody until further investigation could be completed.

In other court activity Julius Szoradi, Kelowna, was fined $200 and had his licence suspended for three months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Szoradi was charged after he struck a parked car while attempting a turn onto KLO Road about 8 p.m. Thursday.

Mayor's Planning Committee Wants New Complex In Park

The latest ideas on a new "focal point" for Kelowna—a replacement for the Aquatic complex—was brought before the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Harold Long, who is on Mayor R. F. Parkinson's long-range planning committee told the chamber that the committee's latest thinking would have a complex within the Kelowna City Park.

"We need a focal point in Kelowna for Kelowna people and activities, and the park is really the only logical place for this," Mr. Long said.

Central to the new complex—which is being planned to last for 10 years before expansion is needed—will be a convention hall with a capacity of 700 people. The building would be moved back a bit from the water and north in the park—but it would be in the 33-acre park.

MANY USES

Although many local events had "outgrown" the old Aquatic, the building was operated continually at peak capacity until it was destroyed by fire June 24.

"It is absolutely amazing just how many people used the Aquatic and the number of events going on there," the chamber's representative to the planning group said.

During the year an average of 300 bookings were made, plus 140 regular bookings by the parks and recreation commission. Thirteen groups used the building from three to five times per year for major events of a large size.

CONVENTION CENTRE

Mr. Long said the committee had settled on the 700-people limit to the convention dining facility by considering the city's ability to hold people. Conventions larger than that, he pointed out, are considered impractical for Kelowna because local hotels and motels could not accommodate all the guests at once. The chamber, which earlier said a convention centre in the new complex was paramount, confirmed the committee's direction of planning.

The long range planning committee, which includes representatives from various local organizations and service clubs, is too unwieldy, Mr. Long said. "It's accomplished nothing," he said, adding that most of the work has been done by the sub-committees the large group organized.

He also said there are "too many architects and engineers" each with his own idea of what the new Aquatic should look like.

PARK FOR PEOPLE

Director Ernie Cowan pointed out to Mr. Long that there is a considerable body of sentiment which is opposed to building the new complex in the park. "The park is for people," is their idea.

But existing parking space and the fact that the park is almost unused for the majority of the year are leading to a decision "almost unanimous" that the building will be placed there, Mr. Long said.

The city has promised to commence construction as soon as possible and hold $300,000 in insurance money from the old Aquatic to put up the building—plus whatever other funds it can raise from other sources.

With the ambitiousness of planning, however, the cost is almost certain to be higher than the $300,000 already set aside. But the question of whether a money bylaw will be presented to the population, how much it would be for, the ultimate cost of the new Aquatic, are still at the sub-committee discussion stage.

The chamber, with Mr. Long and director Syd Hodge as representatives, is only one group of more than a dozen making its views known.

C of C Members Complaining Where Is Our Money Going?

What are we getting for our money? The question is being asked with increasing frequency by the directors of the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce. And he executive, which does out he funds it collects in dues from members and in a grant from the city, finds itself on the horns of a dilemma.

The directors were told Thursday that their busy schedule of promoting tourism and industrial expansion here is at the expense of members who pay dues but do not gain from chamber activities.

"What am I getting for my buck?" was the way director Ernie Cowan phrased the members' question.

Left with a $3,000 deficit last year and a "hold the line" budget this year, the executive feels it is not using member dues to promote tourism and industry.

Bill Stevenson, manager, said the chamber "contracts" with the city for these services and is paid for them—whether or not it is paid enough is another question.

DUES BEHIND

But the chamber's thorniest problem now is dues. At this time, Mr. Stevenson said, there are $3,032 dues collectible but unpaid by members. At times, the directors are forced to hire a special collector to gather in the late dues. "As a non-profit organization, the chamber can only function properly by the investments of its members," the manager said. "Grants of varying types are available from provincial and civic governments, but reliance on such sources of revenue restricts one of the major functions of a chamber—to keep a watch-in-brief on the activities of these bodies."

Lack of funds, he said, restricts general meetings with the members and the accompanying "thought-provoking speakers," the mailing of information of recent legislation, and the ability to send directors, members and staff to discussions and conventions where new methods and thoughts are presented.

Each time the Kelowna chamber sends out material to its members, the postal bill is $50.

The directors in general stressed that chamber dues are used for purely membership-benefiting activities as much as possible, not to provide other services at the expense of the members.

A new dues structure is now under study by the chamber executive, and a debate with the city on the amount of its annual grant and what it should be used for is almost a continuous dialogue.

land for R. V. Roger Crawley, a Grade teacher at North Glenmore Elementary. In Crowden, Surrey, part of greater London, Mr. Crawley was a secondary teacher in geography. In Kelowna, because of a difference in qualifications, he can teach only the elementary grades. "It's a matter of qualifications, most English teachers go to a college of education and receive a certificate; over here they require a degree," Mr. Crawley said. Mr. Crawley arrived in Kelowna, and not one of the major population centres, by way of application. "I applied to about 30 school boards in Canada and Kelowna was the first to offer me a job. I didn't want to come to home which simplified the problem of taking care of a career and four children at the same time. But if there were advantages in Africa for Mrs. Davis there were advantages also in England. In England, he said, all

Mr. Wyatt taught in an all boys school of about 1,150 pupils in Auckland. He believes there is more "freedom" in the curriculum in Canada. "I enjoy the comparative freedom here in that we are governed in New Zealand by external exams and we have to teach to a fairly set curriculum for a nationwide exam which is in some senses quite restrictive," he said. As a social teacher he discovered the course was combined in Canada but split more definitely into geography and history in New Zealand. Mr. Wyatt came to Kelowna by definite purpose, writing to a friend already in the area. His friend's comments led him to believe Kelowna was a nice place to live and work. With his wife and daughter he came to the area in August and from his first impression of attractive, Mr. Wyatt now regards the country, and the system, as "really terrific."

Road That Goes To England Still Scots Best Sight

EDINBURGH (AP)—An average of 45,000 Scots go south every year, supporting Dr. Samuel Johnson's saying that "Scotland has many fine prospects, but the finest prospect a Scotsman ever sees is the high road that leads him to England."

For the 5,000,000 or so who stay at home, the annual outflow is not an unmixed blessing. It helps check unemployment, though at five per cent this still runs at double the rate for England.

Scotland is in transition. More Scots now are employed in the electronics industry than in coal mining. Shipbuilding and marine engineering may be in decline, but North American investment is opening new prospects in consumer goods and automotive machinery.

The nationalists are wakening from their tartan dream to find that self-rule is not yet just around the corner. After a triumphal surge which gave them their first and only—member of the British Parliament 18 months ago, they got a cold shower from the local elections of last May. Now, if not dead, they're held in check.

Meanwhile, Scotland continues to trade on its two liquid assets—scotch whisky and Loch Ness, the latter because it may or may not have a monster.

EXPORT INCREASING
The Scotch Whisky Association reckons overseas consumption of scotch goes up about 10 per cent each year. Its export brings in more than $425,000,000 annually.

But sales at home are flagging. It costs too much. The excise duty on scotch for home consumption has been raised five times in five years—26-ounce bottle now costs of this tax.

There's no tax on Nessie, the Loch Ness monster. Whether this "monstrous beastie" really exists or not, reports of her being sighted have a handy way of turning up in August just when the Highlands tourist season is at its height. And that never hurts business.

In the shops of Inverness you can see ideas of Nessie's elongated neck and unlovely humped back on T-shirts and dish towels and every other kind of souvenir. Postcards show her emerging from the lake to upset picnic parties and provoke quotes from her victims such as, "Ye didn't tell me yer was bringing yer mother-in-law along."

Catering for tourists has spawned a rash of minor industries, some of a type which makes the old-style Scotsman almost choke on his porridge. Women are wooed with skin food from scotch seaweed and a range of perfumes, made in the Hebrides, with such names as Plaid (soft, warm and tweedy) and Dark Glen (semi-sweet, sophisticated).

PRESBYTERIANS STRICT
Occasionally, especially in the remote Western Isles, the tourist cult runs into trouble with the strict Free Presbyterian Church locally called the Wee Frees.

The Isle of Skye rose in near-revolt over a bid to start a Sunday ferry service. When a garage owner in Stornoway, Isle of Lewis, installed an automatic pump so motorists could get gasoline out of hours, he fell afoul of the Lord's Day Observance Society. The pump is padlocked now on Sundays.

In the Highlands people don't easily forget the past. Amidst those timeless mountains a century can sometimes seem like yesterday.

In the 1692 massacre of Glencoe the Campbells ambushed the Macdonalds and slew them. Today at the Clachaig Inn at the top of the glen the notice on the reception desk reads: "No Campbells."

It's no a joke," says landlord Rory Macdonald. "I don't want them in my hotel."

Traditions die hard. George Iain Murray is the 10th Duke of Atholl. He commands Britain's only permitted private army, the Atholl Highlanders. Most exclusive. Entry by private invitation from the duke.

He paraded them this spring—20 men mostly recruited from among the gamekeepers of his estate, and six pipers—to mark the 700th anniversary of the building of Blair Castle, his ancestral home.

LOSING PEOPLE
The Highlands are losing population faster than the rest of Scotland and the day may come when the duke finds it hard to find recruits.

Only 275,000 of Scotland's 5,000,000 live in the Highlands, which make up one-sixth of the total land area of Britain. The mountains are rugged, the winters bitter cold.

The Highlands and Islands Development Board, a government-financed agency, does what it can to try to halt the population leak.

Its biggest current project is a smelter, costing more than $90,000,000 being built for British Aluminium near the one-time naval base of Invergordon on Cromarty Firth. It will be in operation by 1971, employing 500 local men for a start, more later.

The biggest city is Glasgow, a tough town. It has a Roman Catholic-Protestant problem similar to Northern Ireland's—and an alcohol problem.

There are 10,000 immigrants in Glasgow, mainly from India and Pakistan, and they seem to get along well with the local population. Their arrival had posed one problem: Should they, as Hindus or Moslems, be considered Protestant or Roman Catholic? If Roman Catholic, then their children must go to Roman Catholic schools; if Protestant, they'd go to state schools. It was ruled that Indians and Pakistanis are "Protestants."

BIG HOUSING PROJECT

Much of the old Gorbals district of ill repute has vanished from the city map. High-rise concrete-and-glass apartment blocks on stilts look out on the last of the old brownstone back-to-back tenements. Altogether 29 of the city's 37 municipal wards are undergoing extensive reconstruction. One-third of Glasgow's housing will be replaced.

Several times in the last two centuries Glasgow has pulled itself up by the bootstraps out of depression. Tobacco, cotton, iron and steel in turn boomed and slumped. But the bold new Glasgow rising now far exceeds anything done in the past.

The city has adopted a deliberate policy of overspill, cutting the population living within the city limits by 80,000 from 1,100,000 and moving them out to newly-built satellite cities in the suburbs.

But changing their housing doesn't change people. Glasgow's crime rate is still the highest in Scotland. The gangs have been quiet since singer Frankie Vaughan made a pitiless attempt to induce them to give up their weapons—a few gang members even did—but wall graffiti still mark their strict territorial limits: "Tiny Brigade starts here; West Rebels keep out."

Economically, the situation looks mixed. Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, the firm that built the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, is struggling for survival. The largest private firm in Scotland, it employs 15,000.

There are big plans for development of the Clyde Estuary, where it is proposed to adapt 2,000 acres of agricultural land for industrial purposes. Projects being considered include a $100,000,000 marine terminal and oil pipeline from Chevron Oil.

SOCCER-MAD CITY
Glasgow is possibly the most soccer-mad city in the world. A quarter of a million people can crush into three main stadiums on a Saturday afternoon.

When the Celtics meets the Rangers, it's not only a sporting occasion; it's a religious one too. The Celtics are backed by the Roman Catholics, the Rangers by the Protestants. It's a fine chance to work off old scores, so more heads are bloodied in the stands than on the field. Ibrox Stadium, the Rangers' home, has twice been burned. No accident, the Rangers say. Winnie Ewing, Scotland's only nationalist member of Parliament, would like to see some of this soccer frenzy diverted to political channels.

"Scotland has been written off the map by London," Mrs. Ewing says. "Is Scotland afraid to govern itself? Is it easier to sit in an armchair and say what an awful job Prime Minister Harold Wilson is doing?"

Actually, Scotland does run many of its own affairs. It has its own legal system based on Roman law, different from the English system. It has its own banks and own paper money.

The capital is Edinburgh, an historic city of nearly 500,000 persons which wears its age and occasional decrepitude with grace.

A Crawling Peg Needs Watching

OTTAWA (CP)—Importers and exporters, and others who deal in foreign exchange, may have something new to watch: an asymmetrical crawling peg.

It might even be symmetrical. This fascinating little bug has been conceived, and probably will be discussed at the International Monetary Fund annual meeting to be held in Washington at the end of this month. But it isn't likely to be born for a long time yet.

All of the world's major currencies now have their exchange values pegged—Canada's dollar at 92.5 cents in U.S. funds. Under IMF rules, day-to-day foreign exchange dealings can fluctuate within a band of one per cent above and one per cent below the peg.

A growing number of countries find this too restrictive and would like to see the band widened, perhaps to two per cent on either side of the peg.

Many academics—notably Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago—would like to have all pegs removed and let currencies trade internationally at whatever rates the supply and demand calls for.

But most governments won't go that far. They and their businessmen-voters like the stability of pegged exchange rates. Governments defend the peg vigorously, as long as their foreign exchange reserves hold out.

It is only when pressures become too great to withstand that the peg is moved—as happened last month in France when the franc was devalued.

CAN MOVE PEG

Moving the peg by such jumps is disruptive. So the idea developed of letting the peg crawl, almost imperceptibly. The peg might be moved, say, 1-26 of one per cent a week for a maximum crawl of two per cent a year.

Guido Carli, governor of the Bank of Italy, supports this idea for European countries, at least. Other authorities suggest the peg should be allowed to crawl, but only in one direction, up or down. This concept is what is known as the asymmetrical crawling peg.

A crawling peg limited to upward movement might be popular in countries such as Germany and Japan, on which there is pressure to revalue the mark and the yen to higher rates.

So far, the Canadian government has expressed no views on the subject. Finance department officials themselves haven't reached a consensus or recommended a line of policy to the government.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson's position is that all countries should strive to defend their pegs. But at the IMF meeting in Washington, starting Sept. 29, he and the Canadian delegation will be listening to what other countries have to say.

MAY MAKE STUDY

The IMF is unlikely to take any action on the subject this year beyond, perhaps, agreeing that the subject be studied.

The Canadian government will have to make up its mind sometime. Canada is both a member of the 20-nation executive of the IMF, and one of the so-called Group of Ten most-influential countries in international monetary matters.

But the IMF itself is a crawling sort of animal. Founded 25 years ago at the Bretton Woods, N.H., conference, it has taken more than five years to reach agreement on the creation of new special drawing rights, known as SDRs.

These are to be activated at the coming meeting, enabling all 111 members to create $9,500,000,000 worth of new "paper gold" for trading among governments as a new kind of reserve, in addition to gold, U.S. dollars, and sterling.

U.S. Troop Withdrawal Could Help Peace Talks

President Nixon's announcement to withdraw 35,000 more United States troops from Vietnam is seen as a clear invitation to Hanoi to de-escalate the conflict at a time that promises the best chance of success at the Paris peace talks since the negotiations began.

Both sides have shown indications of a more conciliatory mood in recent weeks—in Hanoi mainly because of President Ho Chi Minh's death and in the United States because of public opinion which has Nixon walking a tightrope between unilateral withdrawal and negotiated settlement.

While there has been no clear statement from Hanoi's new leaders on war policy, the death of Ho made one thing clear—the fighting between the Soviet Union and China has had an effect on the North Vietnamese war effort.

Ho's last will and testament called for a get-together between the Communist giants, who have been battling along their borders for months. It resulted in Soviet Premier Kosygin's surprise visit to Peking last week.

Relations between the two countries seem no closer since the Kosygin's visit, with both sides renewing their attacks on each other through the press. In addition, there were public statements out of Hanoi that the quarrel has hurt the Vietnam war effort.

This situation, coupled with a decrease in Vietnam battlefield activity in late August and September, leads analysts to an optimistic view for some action from the Paris peace talks.

President Nixon, possibly with an eye to students returning to classes this week and a proposed march of 30,000 war protesters on Washington, has made what sources here say are at least two determined efforts to demonstrate American desire to de-escalate the war.

One was the just-announced troop withdrawal and the other was the curious cessation of U.S. B-52 bombing raids for 36 hours last week.

The raid cessation, the sources said, had a military basis as well as a more fundamental political intention.

They said the U.S. president saw the faint possibility that Hanoi had determined, even before Ho's death, to use their leader's demise as a pretext for a real de-escalation of the war. To show American willingness to reciprocate, the president ordered the brief cessation of bombing raids in South Vietnam.

What further leads American specialists to believe a change in Hanoi policy is likely is the fact the North Vietnamese have let the size of their troops run down to what appears to be a too precarious position to pursue a long struggle effectively.

In Paris, the Viet Cong guerrilla delegation described the troop-withdrawal plan as "more or less dribbles," but there was none of the sarcasm that characterized their comment when Nixon pulled out 25,000 men earlier this summer.

Perhaps Hanoi's leaders after five years of war are realizing, for whatever reasons, that as Nixon said in announcing the new troop withdrawal, "the time has come to end this war."

Pension Act Changes

(Victoria Colonist)

There is one aspect of the proposals for amendment of the Pensions Act which immediately wins approval as being logical and fair.

This is the recommendation for "insurance" benefits for dependants of veterans imprisoned after the fall of Hong Kong. Widows and orphans are to qualify for pension.

Further, it is proposed that in the case of Hong Kong veterans who may have died before the act is amended it will be presumed that their deaths were attributable to war service. This means their widows and orphans will be protected.

The shame is that these very reasonable changes in the act have been so long delayed. The Hong Kong veterans have been fighting for them, and other benefits, for 23 years. And there can be no doubt that for lack of perception and adequate planning in Ottawa there has been hardship for many families.

It is typical of the ponderously slow machinery of reform that already nearly five years have elapsed since a committee, headed by Mr. Justice Mervyn Woods, was appointed to study the Pensions Act and bring in recommendations. We now have reached the White Paper stage: that is, the minister responsible for pensions, J. E. Dube, has published his proposals for amendment of the act based on the findings of the Woods commission.

As the Woods commission report before it, the White Paper now goes to the Commons committee on veterans affairs for study.

Finally, amending legislation will be drawn up and presented to Parliament.

Assuming that the White Paper's proposals are accepted more or less as they stand, they contain little more than administrative changes—for example, in the method of adjudicating pensions claims.

The recommendations, of course, do not touch basic pension rates. This is an entirely separate study, affecting some 165,000 veterans, widows and orphans. Any adjustment contemplated by Ottawa, it is safe to say, will not be hurried in spite of the fact that these people—like every other pensioner—have been seriously hurt by price inflation.

Any adjustment in their scale of compensation is still in the dim and distant future.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Not A Sickness But Sign Of It

By DR. GEORGE THIOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thioleston: I had an attack of hematuria. Can you tell me something about this sickness?—E.A.H.

It is not a sickness, but a sign of an illness. Hematuria means presence of blood in the urine. The amount may be so slight as to be distinguished only by microscopic examination or there may be enough to give the urine a brownish, cloudy or smoky look.

In general, discovery of hematuria, demands a thorough search for the cause, which may be benign or may be serious—there are many causes.

Probably the commonest is a bacterial infection, among the offending germs being the TB organism. Location of the infection varies. It may be cystitis (that is, inflammation in the bladder), or the infection may be in the kidney proper, or prostate infection can cause hematuria in males.

On the basic cause of the bleeding may be remote from the urinary tract. One example is bacterial endocarditis, or a form of infection that primarily is in the heart lining. This can lead to clot or embolus formation which in turn can cause bleeding in the kidneys. Kidney stones in the kidney, a ureter, or in the bladder can cause bleeding.

For quite another possibility, so can the use of anticoagulant (anti-clotting) drugs. Likewise so can blood disorders which cause a person to bleed easily. Vitamin C deficiency sometimes is involved.

At times a tumor of one type or another results in bleeding. Sometimes, and I have seen such cases, it is impossible to discover the source of the bleeding. Doubtless, at times it is a small ulcer or small injury which heals and puts an end to the condition.

So I cannot give you any specific cause of hematuria but can only give you a sampling of the more frequent causes. But I trust also that I have made clear why hematuria calls for study of the patient's condition.

Dear Dr. Thioleston: I have a discharge—and think it is from having sexual relations. Do you know what can be done about it?—S.G.

Yes—don't you? See a doctor, and find out whether you have acquired an infection.

Legion Ladies' Auxiliary Launches Fall Projects

PEACHLAND (Special)—The ladies' auxiliary to the Royal Canadian Legion here held their first meeting of the fall season Monday evening.

Welcomed by the president Marg Oltmanns, was a newcomer to the community, Lillian Giroux.

A report was given on the concession stand operated at the fall fair, though this was not a success financially it was felt that it had been a worthwhile service to the community.

A letter was read from the Salvation Army in Vancouver thanking the LA for their help with a donation in past years, and requesting the same again.

The meeting re-affirmed the group's decision the donation be given to the local canvass for funds this year.

The secretary brought to the meeting's attention a motion passed early in the year which stated in future the annual meeting and election of officers would be held in November instead of January. This was again discussed and though the elections will be held as planned new officers will not take office until January 1.

The president informed the group she had been approached by Mary Smith, president of the fair committee, with a suggestion that the LA might help with a donation towards buying a community marquee. The one at this year's fair having proved so useful, all groups are being approached on this matter as such a marquee could be an asset in legion projects. The meeting voted to donate $10 towards the purchase.

Decorating the legion hall was discussed and ladies agreed this is again needed and should be done if possible before Nov. 11.

A committee of three was appointed. Mrs. Oltmanns, Mrs. E. Chisholm and Mrs. A. Coldham to get estimates and order material needed.

Next meeting of the LA will be held on Mon. Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m.

WESTBANK (Special) — On Monday morning, Sept. 15, 30 children accompanied by their mothers, registered at Westside Kindergarten. Welcoming the newcomers at the door were supervisors Mrs. Milton Reece and Mrs. Henry Paynter. Assisting the teachers in the registration was Mrs. R. J. Bennett.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bernard Usher and Mrs. Bill Bennett, after which the children went into the playground with Mrs. Wally Smith. During this time Mrs.

Ben Waldron, chairman of the Kindergarten Committee, welcomed the parents and explained the necessity of starting an afternoon class.

Provisions are being made to begin this class on or about Oct. 1, 1969 at St. George's Anglican Church Hall. Applications are available from Mrs. Waldron, RR 1, Westbank.

Mrs. Reece and Mrs. Paynter then explained the kindergarten program and supplies needed by the children.

Pay TV In United States Keeping Fans In Suspense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like an unfinished soap opera, the continuing story of pay-TV in the United States has kept its anxious fans in suspense all summer, and nobody yet knows when to expect the next episode.

The script still is being written here by the U.S. Court of Appeals, which has been asked to decide whether the Federal Communications Commission was within its legal authority when it established policies last June 12 permitting pay-TV throughout the country.

Should the court uphold the FCC—as it did in 1962 when the commission authorized a trial run of pay-TV in Hartford, Conn.—the pay-TV policy would still face an ordeal in Congress where at least 20 bills to kill it have been introduced.

Theatre owners, the commercial television networks and some viewers afraid they'd lose free TV are allied against it.

Pay-TV—television broadcasting that could be received only upon payment by the viewer—has been a controversial issue since the FCC started considering it in 1955.

Supporters claim it would bring culture—the opera, arts, new movies and live theatre—that mass appeal, sponsor-supported free TV could not provide would become available to the viewer willing to pay.

Opponents counter that pay-TV, seeking maximum profits, would woo the same mass audience as free TV and buy off the same audience-pleasing attractions—leaving the public to pay for the same entertainment it can get for free.

After reviewing the seven-year Hartford experiment, the FCC concluded last Dec. 13 that pay-TV was neither that good nor that bad and was worth a Commission try.

In Hartford it had managed to offer "some" culture, the FCC found, but "audience response was not great."

The major part of pay-TV programming would be dominated, the FCC predicted, by feature films and sports—two main staples of today's commercial TV.

T quiet fears that pay-TV would drive free TV off the air, the FCC ruled there could be only one pay-TV station per community and only if that community had four other commercial stations in operation.

Teeth Identify Dead Girl In Chicago Murder Trial

CHICAGO (AP) — A Valparaiso, Ind., dentist told a jury in a murder trial Thursday that the body of a girl found in an oil drum buried on a farm was definitely that of Ella Jean Scott, 18.

Dr. Larry Barnesberger testified as the prosecution rested its case in the trial of Samuel Saikin, 53, a Chicago businessman.

Barnesberger said x-rays of the teeth of the victim matched those he took of Miss Scott.

The dentist's testimony was necessary to establish beyond doubt the identity of Miss Scott. The body was found after Saikin's son, Joe, 25, told police of the slaying.

The younger Saikin has testified his father killed Miss Scott, his former secretary, Nov. 5, 1967. He also told the jury of nine men and three women that the slaying took place in the Biological Research Product Co., owned by the elder Saikin.

The son said the slaying took place after the girl refused to go along with a plan for her to undergo a brain operation.

In three days of the trial, the younger Saikin and three of the father's business associates have testified Saikin told them he planned to have Miss Scott's memory erased in a brain operation.

They said the father wanted to make the girl forget her past in which she had been engaged to Joel and married to an air force sergeant and worked as a go-go girl in Las Vegas, Nev.

KELOWNA WEDDING

Twin Nephews Of Bride Serve As Ring-Bearers

Twin nephews of the bride, Blair and Todd Schlosser of North Vancouver served as ring-bearers for the double-ring ceremony uniting in marriage Diane Margaret Schlosser and Reginald Kenneth Saunders. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mathew Schlosser, Kelowna, and the groom, formerly of Kelowna and now of Mississauga, Ont., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Saunders of Ponoka, Alta.

The wedding took place in Immaculate Conception church which was decorated with yellow and white gladioli and white satin pew markers. Rev. Francis Godderis conducted the nuptial mass at 5:30 p.m. on Sept. 18.

Soloist Lawrence Schlosser, the bride's father, accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Ratcliffe, also of Kelowna, sang, Because and Ave Maria.

WHITE SATIN
Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a long/sleeveless A-line white satin gown, with an overcoat of white satin, trimmed in applied lace daisies. Her headpiece was of white stephanotis and seed pearls. A long cathedral train fell from the shoulders of the coat. She carried a long cascade bouquet of yellow cymbidium orchids, white stephanotis and leatherleaf.

Keeping the traditional "something old" she wore a blue garter and a borrowed veil, belonging to one of her bridesmaids. The bride's sister, Mrs. James Watson of New Westminster who served as matron of honor, wore an A-line dress of moss green tulle, with a chain of green centres and white daisies down the front and encircling the hem. She carried a crescent bouquet of white shasta daisies.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Genny Conner, and Audrey Langle, both of Vancouver, Mrs. Marie Jaffee, Kelowna and Mrs. Carol Zuercher, New Westminster wore gowns identical to the matron of honor's dress. Their headpieces were formed of daisies entwined in their coils.

The flower girl, the bride's niece, Rebecca Watson of New Westminster, wore a gown similar to the attendants, with a mandarin collar trimmed with daisies which also trimmed the hem. She carried a basket of white shasta daisies.

MR. AND MRS. REGINALD SAUNDERS
(Paul Ponich Studios)

Don Mark of Stettler, Alta., served as best man and the groom's other attendants were Bruce Kitch, Douglas Chisholm and Greg Schlosser, all of Kelowna, and Ron Heintz of Ponoka, Alta.

For the reception in the Royal Anne, the bride's mother received wearing a coat dress of pink and eggshell rachel knit, with eggshell accessories. A corsage of white carnations and pink sweetheart-roses enhanced her costume and the bridegroom's mother chose an autumn colored printed silk dress topped with a coat of mint green lined with the same print. Off-white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses completed her ensemble.

Before leaving on their honeymoon trip to Ontario where they will make their home at Mississauga, the bride changed to a minidress of yellow crepe, with white sleeves and collar and carried a lightweight yellow wool coat. Rust accessories and a yellow cymbidium orchid corsage accented the costume. The wedding cake, featured a "stairway of happiness" theme in decor and was passed to the guests by the bridegroom. Master of ceremonies was the bride's brother, John Schlosser and Dave Hewer proposed the toast to the bride. Don Mark performed similar honors for the bridesmaids.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Mary Chapman of England and many others from Vancouver, North Vancouver, New Westminster, Burnaby, North Kamloops, Penticton, Osoyoos, Sumnerland, Olds, Alta., Blairmore, Alta., Edmonton and Ponoka, Alta.

Toys For Tots Better Than Teas

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — A Moose Jaw woman who wanted to "do something worth while" in her spare time has spent about 800 hours in the last four years making stuffed animals for retarded children.

Mrs. Wallace Worsley says she began her hobby in 1965 after she got tired of "silly get-together projects like teas and afternoon socials."

She collected some old clothes to provide material for the animals. Bodies, drew patterns on brown wrapping paper and set to work. She hasn't stopped since.

She donates most of the animals to training schools for retarded children throughout the province.

Most of the material is donated by friends. Old clothes are used for stuffing.

Mrs. Worsley makes the animals large because the children "seem" to like them that way and they stand up better to rough handling.

Her most ambitious project to date was commissioned by the Moose Jaw police force. The force donated four old buffalo coats, worn by officers on winter patrols, and asked her to construct a buffalo for them. The finished product weighed 55 pounds.

Mrs. H. C. Dunlop and Mrs. Hedley Vickers accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Jim Grahame of Oyama on a 10-day holiday recently. Travelling by car, they went up to and beyond Smithers to enjoy some excellent fly fishing in the northern lakes and rivers in that part of the country.

Back from a month-long holiday spent with relatives and friends at Vancouver and Victoria is Margaret McAllister of Bertram Street.

R. M. Simpson has returned from the coast where he accompanied his daughter Margo, who returned to her classes at the Queen Margaret School at Duncan. Weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Simpson were Mrs. Simpson's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Seviars of Spokane, Wash.

Newcomers to Kelowna are Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Pollock of Weyburn, Sask., who are making their home at Sutherland Manor Apartments.

Winnipeg visitors in the city are Mr. and Mrs. A. Huff, who are enjoying a two-week holiday with Mrs. Huff's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rode, Rosemead Avenue. The Huffs are enjoying the Okanagan fruit season and will also be doing some sightseeing with their hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Montie Elsdon of Beach Avenue recently returned from a visit at the coast with Mrs. Elsdon's mother, Mrs. W. C. Wells at Victoria. Accompanying the Elsdons on the trip were their daughters, Boats, who returned to her studies at the University of Victoria; Dawn who returned to the Queen Margaret school at Duncan, and Vicki who has enrolled in the B.C. Institute of Technology. Daughter Wendy who received her arts degree at Simon Fraser is enjoying several months at home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bateson of Lakeshore Road, were Saturday visitors in Penticton where they were guests at the wedding of a relative of Mr. Bateson.

Recent guest with Dr. and Mrs. Harold Henderson of De Hart Avenue were Mrs. Henderson's father, G. W. Edwards and Mrs. Edwards of White Rock, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stark of Swift Current returned to Saskatchewan after enjoying a five-day holiday in the Okanagan with their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Salloum of Braeloch Road.

If You Pay For Everything It Costs $1,600 For First Baby

TORONTO (CP) — If you have to pay for everything from rabbit test through to the sitter, it costs about $1,600 to have a first baby and maintain him in moderate comfort for a year.

If, like most people, you have friends and family willing to donate to his upkeep or if you want to pare costs, you can spend less. You can also, of course, spend a great deal more.

If you have health insurance, you can start by lobbying about $500 off the total. A downtown Toronto hospital charges $57 a day for a room plus $9 for nursery. The chances are your insurance will take care of the basic charge.

It would probably do the same thing with the basic doctor bill. The Ontario Medical Association-recommended scale for a general practitioner's care through pregnancy and delivery is $110. Charges in other provinces are similar.

Post-natal hospital visits, mother's six-week check and about 10 visits for checks and shots for the baby account for about $72 more. At the OMA scale, a "well baby" visit is $5.50.

NO LOWER RATES

Patients who make use of maternity clinics in two of Toronto's hospitals pay by insurance, are looked after by medical indigents or are presented with the standard bill. Spokesmen say there is no lower rate or pay-as-you-can plan.

Food for a year costs about $216 for a baby who is on a canned-milk formula from the start. Mothers who breast-feed will spend a few dollars less in the first months. Mothers who have the time and equipment to make their own purées may save a few dollars later. Minimal feeding equipment costs about $15, from bottles to dish and spoon.

Fashions Shown In Three Cities

PARIS (CP) — The big seasonal fashion showings in the three major style capitals — New York, Paris and Rome — have their own unique characteristics and qualities which reflect their national backgrounds in the eye of a Canadian observer.

New York shows are characterized by American efficiency, Paris gives an air of the French capital's cool detachment and Rome features the wildly extravagant romantic emphasis of the Italian designers.

The New York fashion picture owes its special vibrance to the recognition of the broad spectrum of clients ranging from working girls to wealthy luminaries of the entertainment world. Many of the New York designers have European backgrounds but declare their independence with individuality.

Regardless of background, the New York presentations offer clothes shaped to the daily requirements of a many-faceted society and country.

AHEAD OF EUROPE

American designers, infected with the national desire to get there first, pick up trends often ahead of the two big European centres.

The pant-suit is a case in point. It originated among the mods of Britain, but the New York trade picked it up and won wide acceptance two years ago for what now is a staple of every woman's wardrobe. Curiously, the pant-suit was being shown in Paris and Rome this summer as if it were a new invention.

Just as Italian music, art, food and decoration differ from those of the Americans, British and French, so the Italianate opulence and love of the rococo, of beautiful precision of line, featured the Rome showings.

Even the surroundings—as in the Grand Hotel's grand ballroom of mirrors and murals of discreetly clad gods and goddesses—echoed the classic qualities of swishing maxi coats and formal gowns paved with beading and jewels.

While the New York and Rome showings are held mainly in a centrally located hotel, the Paris couture collections are presented exclusively in each designer's salon. A special mystique surrounds the salon showings, with photo-bearing identity cards needed for admittance and the guests sworn to solemn oaths of non-sketching.

The salons are scattered over an area of four square miles, with scant time between scheduled showings. Covering the Paris collections

To the dip, simply blend 1 envelope (1½ ounces) onion soup mix with 1 pint dairy sour cream.

ARRESTING SIGHT
AYLESFORD, England (CP) — An embarrassed policeman called at a Kent house to carry out an official inspection on an attractive bikini-clad housewife. A neighbor complained Greta Hodge, 31, was sun-bathing almost naked in her back yard and the constable came to check. "He blushed a little and said there was nothing wrong with it," said Mrs. Hodge.

ANN LANDERS

Wedding Cake Sale Was A Tasteless Move

Dear Ann Landers: If you think you've heard everything, this: "Over the weekend my husband and I attended a wedding. The ceremony was held in a church. It was simple but quite spiritual, the way a wedding ought to be. Following the ceremony the guests were invited to the reception in the church social hall. Sandwiches, cookies, fruit punch and hot coffee were set out on a nicely decorated table. On a separate table was a cash register (owned by two relatives) and the wedding cake with a large sign which read, "Buy a piece of wedding cake for luck. Help finance the honeymoon. Price $5."

Several guests lined up and bought a piece of cake. Even though I love cake, I refused to allow my husband to buy me a piece, as a matter of principle. He bought a piece for himself, however, "as a gesture of good will." This reasoning was, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."

We both would like to know what you think of this.

—Minneapolis Query
Dear Q: Minneapolis isn't Rome. What's more my husband and I have attended several wedding in Minneapolis and we never had to buy cake. In my opinion that cake sale was a tasteless move.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Wet Hankie" and for all the other letters in the world who are unable to control their emotions. Take the advice of a girl who learned the hard way: "Very, very, very good for you. I am 17 and I very nearly had nervous breakdown because I was afraid to show any signs of 'wonderfulness.' My father is a career Army officer — well, I cannot buy very strict and certain in his approach to everything and everybody. My father survived a German concentration camp. That inhuman experience made her a real one. I was taught that it was disgraceful to let anyone see the soft side of me.

Until I was 15 I managed to keep everything bottled up. Then all of a sudden I began to

These TV Terms Have A Meaning

As you become interested in purchasing a color television set, you'll start to hear some new words and letters. The ABC's of color television are quite simple. Following is a glossary, supplied by the Electronic Industries Association, that will make your shopping and viewing easier:

Hue—control on color TV set which governs coloring and shading of picture.

Tint — alternate name for "hue" control on color TV set.

Tuner — knob which selects station.

UHF — ultra high frequency; TV channels 14 through 83; received by all color sets.

VHF — very high frequency; TV channels 2 through 13; received by all color sets.

Diagonal — way of measuring screen size. All color set screen sizes are stated in terms of the "viewable diagonal," the distance from one corner to the opposite, or diagonal, corner. Thus, the 18-inch screen size is the distance, for example, from the upper left corner to the lower right.

Automatic degaussing—automatically removes any impurities in color picture which might be caused by magnetic interference.

Interference — electrical signals which interfere with recognition.

Convergence — adjustment by trained service personnel of electronic beams to achieve fine color reception.

Frame — one complete television picture; there are 30 per second.

Dipole — antenna fed from the centre; synonymous with "rabbit ear" antenna.

Monopole — single-rod indoor TV antenna.

MATV — master antenna system, such as used in apartment buildings, motels.

Lead-in — the wire (or cable) from antenna to TV set.

AFC — automatic frequency control; sometimes called "automatic fine tuning;" circuit which locks receiver to station.

AGC — automatic gain control; equalizes picture so that it does not reflect changes in strength of incoming signal.

Closed-circuit-television system in which camera and receiver are linked by particular cable; exclusive telecasting to designated receivers versus public station programming.

Integrated circuit (IC) — a miniature electronic device which performs the functions of and replaces many individual components in a complete circuit.

Color TV Making History Since Inception In 1930

While the average color television viewer considers this miracle of the '60's a recent development, he'll be surprised to find that color TV has been making history since 1930. Then scientists began examining the problems of transmitting and receiving acceptable color.

It was in 1940 that the first official demonstration of color was made for the Federal Communications Commission, and by the next year successful telecasts were made from New York City's Empire State Building.

It wasn't until 1947 that work on color television was renewed after the Second World War interrupted its progress. Then color reception as demonstrated with a 19-foot theatre screen and an all-electronic camera was developed.

While Americans were delighted with black and white television, and the number of sets in use mushroomed, the industry was working behind the scenes on two different color reception systems—one a semi-mechanical system which wouldn't permit reception in black and white as well.

Through the work of the National Television Systems Committee sponsored by the Electronic Industries Association, compatible color TV standards were developed. By 1953, color TV was ready for public use by those fortunate enough to have color receivers, or those who were still in the monochromatic era.

By 1954, color programming, including the all-time favorite color program of the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, Calif., and the World Series, had begun. Then 30 stations were equipped with color telecasting and 100 hours of network programs were telecast. Today, for example, the National Broadcasting Company, which was the first to offer network color programming, presents more than 4,500 hours a year in network colorcasts. More than 500 stations throughout the country are equipped to transmit network color, and color television sales in 1967 reached nearly $3,000,000,000 in retail sales volume.

Wire Tapping Criticized By Goldberg In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—The invasion of privacy in the United States through electronic means is a practice that is "unconstitutional," Arthur Goldberg, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said Tuesday.

Mr. Goldberg made the comment during a panel discussion at the opening of the University of Manitoba law faculty's new Robson Hall.

MAY STAY HOME

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Cancellation of pheasant and Hungarian partridge hunting this year could seriously affect the tourist industry in southern Alberta, an official of the Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce said Tuesday. Jack Lakie said in an interview that hunters of upland game pump between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 into cities and towns across Southern Alberta each fall.

BERATES CO-OP

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—A spokesman for the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor Tuesday criticized the Prince Albert Co-operative Association for considering replacing 35 striking employees. "This is an indication that their whole industrial relations policy has been misguided," H. S. Elkin, assistant executive secretary of the federation, said in an interview.

To Mars Or Not To Mars In 80s Still Being Studied In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon soon will make a decision on the goals of the United States in space, choosing from three alternatives—including two that would put man on Mars in the 1980s.

All three choices, made public Tuesday by the White House, foresee development of a space station and a re-usable earth-to-orbit shuttle vehicle.

Under the first and most expensive option, the annual cost would climb steadily from the current $4,000,000,000 a year to $8,100,000,000 for each fiscal year from 1970 through 1980. Total cost would be $78,200,000,000 and would lead to a Mars landing in 1982.

The second and third alternatives would keep the annual cost at $4,000,000,000 the next two fiscal years, rising to a peak of $5,700,000,000 in 1976. The second option, which envisions a Mars landing in 1980, would then rise to a peak of $5,000,000,000 a year in the early 1980s, with an 11-year total expenditure of $57,500,000,000. Option three would require a funding of $54,100,000,000 in the first 11 years.

"We presented a balanced program," said Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, who heads a four-member presidential advisory group on space. "My personal preference is option two which allows a clear acceptance of a Mars landing in 1980 but leaves us free to be flexible in unmanned precursor flights."

AVOIDS EXTREMES

The report shunned two extremes—dropping all manned flights after the three-flights-a-year Apollo program runs its course or starting an all-out program to put man on Mars in the 1970s.

Mini-Trend Goes On TV

With the advent of "mini" color television sets, the versatility of smaller size and the appeal of lower prices are making this entertainment vehicle the modern candidate for two-set households.

Matching the general trend to miniaturization—in skirts, telephones, clocks, to name a few examples—are the now-available portable color TV sets. Some are as small as a 10-inch screen.

Behind the mini color television sets is the electronics manufacturing industry's new capability to design color sets with smaller component parts and smaller picture tubes.

Behind The Lens Of Color TV Set

Behind the lens of a color TV camera lies the mechanism that brings living color to your home. The light that enters the lens must be changed to electricity in order to be transmitted to your TV set. Because only a few colors can be sent at a time, the many tints in the image must be separated into the primary colors of light—red, blue, and green—different combinations of which produce all other hues. The colors of the scene that you will see on the screen of your color television set are reduced to a mere three, which permits transmission. This separation is accomplished cleverly. Mirrors within the camera divide the light entering the lens into three equal amounts. Three image orthicons, which are simply the camera tubes that change the light to electricity, await each portion of light. The camera tubes are similar to the ones used in regular television, and any light that enters is changed to electricity. Because only three colors are wanted, each of the three tubes

ROYAL TRIBUTE FROM BEATLES

LONDON (AP) — The Beatles have come up with an affectionate singing tribute to the Queen, who gave them the Order of the British Empire in 1968. In the quartet's latest long-playing record, out Sept. 26, Paul McCartney voices a song with the punch line: "Her Majesty's a pretty nice girl, so some time I'm gonna make her mine. Oh Yeah, some day I'm gonna make her mine." A Beatle press agent said the Beatles "are all monarchists" and that "Paul sang that knowing the Queen would enjoy it." He said a copy of the record would be sent to Buckingham Palace. A palace spokesman commented: "I don't think she listens to a great deal of pop music."

SECURITY NET

LONDON (CP) — Anglers are probably the world's biggest yarn spinners, so it's particularly frustrating for the 35,000 members of the London Angler's Association who are sworn to secrecy about their catches. Club officials are afraid that if word got out about where they catch their big fish, other fishermen would clean out the rivers.

IN VENEZUELAN MOUNTAINS

Cardinal Turns Guerrilla Pacifier

CARACAS (Reuters) — A Roman Catholic cardinal may bring to an end the once virulent pro-Castro guerrilla movement in Venezuela—if he can coax the top rebel leader into surrendering under a government amnesty. Guerrilla spokesmen have denied an agreement already has been reached. But a Communist party official commented wryly that "the ways of God are infinite," implying that Jose Humberto Cardinal Quintero will succeed in talking the rebels down from the mountains. The cardinal heads a pacification drive launched by President Rafael Caldera when he took office early this year. The success of the pacification program has prompted some observers to go so far as to say that the guerrilla campaign launched nine years ago is dead. But others are awaiting the surrender of the chief rebel, Douglas Bravo, before writing the movement's obituary. Bravo is known as Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's chief "delegate" in Venezuela. In any event, it is clear that Caldera picked the right moment to launch his drive. Recognizing weaknesses among the ranks of the guerrillas as well as a changed international situation, Caldera made an attractive offer following his inauguration in March. Any guerrilla who laid down his arms, left the mountains and surrendered to the authorities would automatically receive a presidential pardon and freedom, he said. When a recognized guerrilla leader, Pedro Medina Silva, gave himself up and received the promised pardon a rush of guerrillas followed suit. Aware of the success of the drive, the government now has decided not to announce the names of "pacified" guerrillas, presumably to protect them in their new private lives. If Bravo surrenders, the guerrilla movement in Venezuela would be broken and Caldera would have scored a major victory. Several unrelated factors have helped Caldera bring peace to the Venezuelan countryside. The guerrilla campaign began partly as the result of a personal feud between Castro and then President Romulo Betancourt (1959-64). Castro was determined to topple Betancourt and the Venezuelan campaign against Cuba within the international community. In 1962, Cuba was suspended from the Organization of American States for being "incompatible" with the inter-American system. Two years later, Betancourt's successor as president and leader of the Democratic Action party, Raul Leon, successfully urged the OAS to order all member states to break economic and diplomatic relations with the Castro government. In elections last December, Caldera, as the Social Christian party's candidate, defeated Democratic Action's standard-bearer, Gonzalo Barrios, thus opening the way for a new chapter in relations with Cuba and the Communist world. However, while Venezuela's domestic situation has changed significantly, other international factors have probably contributed even more to ending the guerrilla campaign in the country. Castro and Havana radio have blasted those guerrillas who have responded to the pacification drive, but there is evidence that the Cuban premier himself has had a change of heart on his policy of "exporting revolution" to Latin America.

One European diplomat here explained that the death of Cuban revolutionary Ernesto (Che) Guevara in Bolivia in 1967, the failure of his and other guerrilla movements, the present economic situation in Cuba and the state of the Communist world have all contributed to Castro's new attitude.

N. Ontario Loses Young

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — Northern Ontario is losing population at the rate of 8,000 persons a year, most of them young, a provincially-organized northern development conference was told Thursday. In a preliminary report on an analysis of the economy in northeastern Ontario, the department of treasury and economics said a declining birth rate and the slow growth of employment opportunities are the major reasons for the slowdown in population growth that began about 1961.

Film Board To Cut Staff

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Film Board plans to cut staff and production by about 10 per cent in the next few weeks.

"We have to cut staff and production," NFB Chairman Hugo McPherson said in an interview this week, "in order to meet the cost of living on a recently frozen budget."

"The freeze extends to March, 1971, and was imposed by Parliament."

Hungarian Actor Seeks Asylum

LONDON (AP) — Miklos Szakats, a Hungarian actor, said he had defected and asked for political asylum in the United States, The Daily Telegraph reported Wednesday.

The newspaper said Szakats left Hungary after he was asked to spy on his friends among foreign diplomats.

"They wanted me to perform a task that was repugnant to me, something that I could not reconcile with my own integrity," he was quoted as saying.

His wife, Judith Kemeny, a Budapest opera company ballet dancer, accompanied him.

DEBBIE RETURNS

NBC said Thursday that Debbie Reynolds, above, who quit her new television series Wednesday after only one show was telecast, will resume production. She had walked out over a cigarette commercial. Miss Reynolds informed the network of her decision to return to work in a telegram addressed to Mort Werner, the network's vice-president for programming. The commercial remains too.

REHEARSAL SET FOR CITY BAND

The Kelowna City Band will commence rehearsal Sept. 23 in the music room of Kelowna Secondary School.

Ray Friesen, teacher at the school, will direct the band this year.

After an attempt at rejuvenation in January of this year, the band had to break up in June, due to poor attendance, owing to the late start for the 1969 season.

An early start this year is planned to coincide with the usual beginning of winter activities.

Musicians are needed in all sections. Any newcomers in the city will be welcome as well as previous members.

Cuts In Film Defended

MONTREAL (CP) — Jack Day, chairman of Alberta's board of censors says prior cutting of the movie "If..." for showing in the province was done at the request of the distributors.

The distributors "didn't want a restricted adult rating which would have banned the showing of the film in drive-in theatres," he said in an interview here.

"The three eliminations made totalled 40 seconds of screen time."

Mr. Day was commenting on a Canadian Press story from Edmonton quoting an unnamed woman as saying the movie had been grossly distorted by the Alberta censors.

He is in Montreal for the four-day Provincial Censor Board conference which ends Friday.

Mr. Day also denied a portion of the Edmonton story which quoted him as saying censorship has come a long way in Alberta since its mid-Victorian perspective of five or six years ago.

"I never said at any time that Alberta censorship was mid-Victorian five or six years ago."

He said it is impossible to try to compare censorship standards today with those of a few years ago as "standards have changed so rapidly that my predecessor didn't have to see what I see so it's impossible to make comparisons."

Hawaii Wants To Hear Aloha Of More Hollywood Industry

HONOLULU (AP) — Now Hawaii is trying to lure the movie industry away from Hollywood.

First it was New York City, where Major John V. Lindsay effectively cut red tape to encourage film companies to shoot in the big city. Then New Mexico, Arizona and other states and cities made the pitch for producers to use their natural settings.

The reasons are obvious: Film locations can mean millions for local residents and businesses; the movies themselves are splendid advertisements for tourists.

Hawaii long has been a location for Hollywood films, but only on a sporadic basis. Now certain Hawaii officials would like to see more regular patronage of the islands by the movies.

Chief promoter is Honolulu's new mayor, Frank Fasi.

Before I took office, I visited Hollywood, and talked to television and movie people," he says. "I told them I would do everything in my power to create a preferable climate for the two industries to come to Hawaii. I explained to Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty that unlike John Lindsay, I didn't want to take all the business away from Los Angeles; I just wanted a piece of the action."

Fasi told the producers that there would be no red tape as far as the city was concerned. There would be no possible passing of money to civil employees for favors and I would give whatever police protection was necessary."

Hawaii has taken a big step

Network Names New Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Directors of the CTV Television Network Ltd., Thursday announced that Murray H. Chercover has been appointed president and managing director of the network.

The network announced Wednesday that Gordon F. Keeble, chairman and chief executive officer since 1968, will leave the company Oct. 1.

Mr. Chercover has been associated with the network since its inception.

As vice-president of programming for CFTO-TV Toronto, he served on the network committee representing CFTO. When the affiliates acquired ownership of the network, Mr. Chercover was appointed executive vice-president and general manager in April, 1968.

He became president and chief operating officer of the network in January, 1968.

LYING DOWN ON THE JOB
American actress Nicole Shelby and British actor Jonathan Cecil will play all their scenes in bed together in the movie The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes. They portray a pair of bachelors.

BATTLE REMEMBERED

British Group Captain Peter Townsend, 54, best remembered for his one-time romance with Princess Margaret, attends the world premiere of the new film

The Battle of Britain with his Belgian-born wife, Marie-Luce in London. Townsend flew Hurricane fighters in the Battle of Britain in Second World War.

Heston Shows Off House
Used In His Latest Film

LIHUE, Hawaii (AP) — "That's my granddaddy hanging over the fireplace," remarked Charlton Heston, pointing at the oil portrait. "It's supposed to be Richard Harris, but I seem to detect as light resemblance to Darryl F. Zanuck."

Heston was showing a Hollywood visitor about the Isenberg house, a remarkable throwback to the sugar plantation era of the island of Kauai. This is the manor of Whip Hoxworth, whom Heston portrays in The Hawaiians, continuation of the James Michener saga of Hawaii.

The Mirisch people, who are producing The Hawaiians, insist the new film is part of the continuing story that was first filmed with Julie Andrews, Max Von Sydow and Richard Harris as stars. Hawaii depicted the advent of the missionaries; The Hawaiians covers the Chinese immigration.

Thus Heston is portraying the grandson of sea captain Rafer Hoxworth, who was Harris in the first film (the portrait resembles to Zanuck is inexplicable). The Isenberg house was a happy find for the Hoxworth headquarters; it was literally hacked out of the jungle.

"The family that owned it was unbelievably rich," said Heston. "They discarded houses the way some of us throw away old suits. Come see this." He showed the visitors a chimney covered with gnarled vine stems. The whole house was so covered, and it had been forgotten by almost everyone but by hippies, who had set up house-keeping in it.

The vines and hippies were expelled, and set decorators installed 30 tons of furnishings imported from Hollywood. After four weeks on Maui, the Mirisch company moved to Kauai to film the major portion of the movie. Included is the burning of the Honolulu, Chinatown, for which a $300,000 reproduction has been built.

Jon Vickers
Gains Praise

LONDON (CP) — Canadian tenor Jon Vickers drew praise as the Royal Opera House opened its new season Wednesday with its first full staging of Berlioz' lengthy double opera Les Troyens.

This century-old opera, which runs about 5½ hours, has often been described as too wild for staging, but the critics poured out praise, today, one describing the production as "brilliant and compelling."

Vickers, a native of Prince Albert, Sask., who has been acclaimed as one of the world's greatest tenors, sang the role of Aeneas, the Trojan hero torn between his heroic calling and his tragic love for Dido, queen of Carthage.

Woman Says Scenes Deleted Which Distorted The Film

EDMONTON (CP) — During the last scene of the new movie If... a woman stood up and shouted to the audience, "Something must be done about Alberta censorship."

Comparing the film in the Edmonton theatre with the version she had seen in Ontario, she said the movie had been grossly distorted by deletion of several scenes.

Jack Day, chairman of Alberta's board of censors, says censorship has come a long way in Alberta since its mid-Victorian perspective of five or six years ago.

But the 1968 film rating report showed six films rejected in Alberta, two in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and New Brunswick, one in Nova Scotia and none in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec. No figures were given for Prince Edward Island or Newfoundland.

In spite of recent lifting of some of Alberta's laws such as the ban on Sunday films, the censor's scissors often cut sexually explicit or violent scenes.

NUDE SCENES CUT

A decision by the board of censors to cut two scenes from If... appealed by the distributors, resulted in the appeal board making an additional cut. J. W. Nicholson, a board member, says the scenes included a sequence in a boy's shower room in which male genitals were evident, a restaurant sequence in which a male and female were rolling nude on the floor and a front view of a nude woman.

The censorship board recently banned from Alberta movie houses the film The Wild Bunch.

Tom Milne, movie critic of the London Observer, says the film is "... classical, electrifying and so brilliantly done that it makes last week's Once Upon A Time in the West look like amateur night."

But Alberta's Mr. Day calls the movie "a ballet of gore."

A milder form of censorship is restriction according to age.

In 1968, Alberta classified 37.5 per cent of the films shown in the province as family entertainment. British Columbia, on the other hand, classified 64.9 per cent of the films it showed last year as family. Only Saskatchewan classified fewer films as family entertainment than did Alberta.

British Actors, Actresses Asking Union Rule Changes

LONDON (CP) — British actors and actresses, fearful that a tide of stage nudity and simulated sex may come sweeping across the Atlantic, are asking for union rules to protect them against acts which might "exploit or degrade" them.

Equity, the actors union, has put forward a formal request for a general binding agreement from theatre managements fixing conditions for nude auditions, nudity on stage and simulated sex acts. It also would include legal protection for players involved in a show that might run foul of the police.

Under this agreement, actors would have to be told in advance whether the role requires nudity or simulated sex activity. The union also wants auditions for nude roles to be ordinary acting auditions, with the candidates stripping in the presence of an Equity official.

The request will be considered by theatre managements and Equity officials at a Sept. 24 meeting.

STILL BEHIND BROADWAY
"There is much sympathy for our request," said Equity's assistant general secretary, Peter Plouviez.

"Our members are becoming increasingly concerned about nudity and after we have got a theatre agreement we will be turning to films and TV, too."

The British move follows a similar one by American Equity, although the London stage has not yet begun to compete with Broadway in no-holds-barred sexual entertainment. The U.S. rock musical Hair is still the only West End production to feature a nude scene, though it will soon be joined by a revue called Pyjama Tops opening at the Whitehall Theatre.

"Rules have got to be set down for the protection of the artist," said Plouviez. "Our members are worried not because they are prudish but because they know how easy it is in an under-employed profession to exploit and degrade."

"We are frightened that auditions involving nudity could turn into a peep-show with hangers-on and crowds of people merely there for the fun."

HOLLYWOOD JOTTINGS

PROFESSIONAL INTEREST

Chad Everett, star in this season's new television series Medical Centre, was permitted to study at first hand the delivery after he explained to the obstetrician that his interest in witnessing the event was professional rather than paternal.

NOT IN THE SCRIPT

A five-year-old boy appearing in a bit part during shooting of a segment of television's Hawaii Five-O was asked by series star Jack Lord to describe two hoodlums involved in a crime the lad had just witnessed. The young actor, carried away with the realism of it all, replied: "You can find them easy. They're both wearing makeup."

Nigeria Horror Draws Burke

TORONTO (CP) — Stanley Burke, who quit his $30,000-a-year job as announcer on the CBC's national TV news to devote his time working to end the Nigerian civil war, says he made the decision because he was overwhelmed with horror on a visit there.

Writing in The Star, Mr. Burke says he returned from a visit to Nigeria last month "with the profound conviction that now is the time to move, now that all conventional methods have failed, now that more than a million people have already died and another million live under an almost certain sentence of death."

"Most important of all," he writes, "I came back convinced that if enough people are willing to make a commitment, we can end this nightmare."

He says the war resulted from a "well-intentioned mistake."

"Planners in London and Lagos were deceived by the nobility of the Commonwealth ideal and this led them to include two incompatible ideals with the same boundaries."

"The first thing to do now is to face reality, recognize that a mistake was made and that it can be corrected."

He suggests Canada as a logical place for peace talks and called for continuing pressure for peace based on four proposals:

1. Massive increase in aid;
2. Ceasefire;
3. Pressure to stop the flow of arms to both sides;
4. A final settlement based on a referendum to determine the wishes of the inhabitants of the former Eastern Region (Biafra).

CTV Chairman Quits Oct. 1

TORONTO (CP) — The CTV television network announced Wednesday that Gordon F. Keeble, chairman and chief executive officer since 1968, will leave the company Oct. 1.

In a brief statement, the network said Mr. Keeble has decided not to accept a new "long-term contract." No successor was named.

Mr. Keeble, president of CTV from 1966 to 1968, said in a statement:

"The board's offer was a generous one, and one which, after eight years with the network, I found most difficult to turn down. However, the terms of the contract contained certain requirements which were not satisfactory to me, and I have therefore decided to strike out on my own."

He did not elaborate.

DIRECTS 'ALFIE'

Tom Kerr, director of Alfie, being sponsored by the University Women's Club, is well known in Canada and abroad. For three years running, he won best director, and best production awards in the British Columbia finals of the Dominion Drama Festival, and in 1964 won the best director award in the Canadian National Finals.

Mr. Kerr was personally chosen assistant director of the Canadian centennial production in 1966 by Sir Tyrone Guthrie, and his Western Canada Youth Theatre group has recently returned from a triumphant tour of England and Scotland. Alfie will be presented at the Kelowna Community Theatre Sept. 27.

Many Fascinating Tidbits In O. A. Hagen's New Book

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you remember the name of the detective in Edgar Allan Poe's The Murders in the Rue Morgue, The Mystery of Marie Roget and The Purloined Letter?

How many detective, mystery and suspense novels have sold more than 1,000,000 copies, counting both hardcover and softcover?

The earliest known film about Sherlock Holmes was made in what year?

Dedicated mystery buffs should be able to give these answers: C. Auguste Dupin: 151 and 1903.

They are just three of many fascinating tidbits to be found in Who Done It? by Ordean A. Hagen, published recently by R. R. Bowker Co., with the subtitle A Guide to Detective, Mystery and Suspense Fiction.

Nearly half the book's 834 pages consist of a giant bibliography of approximately 20,000 titles—novels and stories—giving author, title, year of publication and publishers.

It covers the period from 1841 to the present.

In his search for every possible title, the author ran into many puzzles because titles often have been changed.

TITLE CHANGED

One example: The original title of one Agatha Christie book was "4:50 from Paddington." It was serialized as Eye Witness to Murder. When it was published in the United States it became What Mrs. McGilleuddy Saw. Later it was made into a movie called Murder. She Said, and was published under that title in softcover.

Of the 151 books that have sold 1,000,000 or more copies, 91 were written by Erle Stanley Gardner, followed by Richard Prather with 16, Ellery Queen 13, Mickey Spillane 12, Ian Fleming 11, Mrs. Christie four, Dashiell Hammett two and John D. MacDonald two. The first 1,000,000-copy thriller was Mary Roberts Rinehart's The Circular Staircase, first published in 1908.

Hagen says the "high tide of detective story popularity came between 1925 and 1945." But today the trend is toward the novel of suspense. He says: "The detective no longer is the central character; the private eye has become obsolete, and a parody if he appears at all."

"More often than not, it is the spy or secret agent who works alone now. This is the new hero of our time, but considering the great number of parodies that have appeared recently he too perhaps has had his day."

STAR-GAZER

Barbara Feldon, co-star of the television comedy series Get Smart, is an astronomy buff and has her own telescope at home.

Delicate-Looking But Determined

LIHUE, Hawaii (AP) — Tina Chen is calm, delicate-looking and quiet-spoken, as you would expect any Chinese young woman to be. But that Oriental tradition hides a firm determination that fits her for one of the best star-making roles in recent times.

Lovely, 24-year-old Tina, with only one minor film role to her credit, was picked to play Nyuk Tsin in The Hawaiians. Readers of the James Michener novel will recall her as one of the most memorable characters—a resolute Chinese woman who is not accepted by her husband as his true wife, because he has another wife in China, who accompanies him to the leper colony on Molokai, who scrimps to buy land and thus found a financial dynasty in Hawaii.

"If Tina doesn't win an Academy nomination, I'll be very much surprised," remarks Tom Gires, director of The Hawaiians.

Unlike the earlier film based on Michener's novel, which was cast largely with Europeans, in The Hawaiians Orientals are real Orientals. Producer Walter Mirisch spent much time in New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles interviewing and testing young Chinese and Japanese performers. One of his most unlikely choices was the beautiful hematologist, Tina Chen.

FAMILY FLEES CHINA

She was born in Chungking, granddaughter of the first premier of the Kuomintang of the Chinese Republic. Her family fled China after the Communist takeover, and she was educated in Hong Kong, Taipei and Tokyo, then took a bachelor of science degree at the University of Hartford.

"I've always been in love with acting, but my parents didn't approve," she remarked. "They insisted that I graduate from college, then I could do anything I wanted."

"They hoped that I would go on and get my degree in medicine, but the thought of four more years of college plus internship and residency didn't appeal to me. So I went to New York and got a job at the Blood Centre. But I really went to New York because I hoped to get an acting career started."

Progress was slow at first. She won a television role in a CBS Playhouse special The Final War of Ollie Winter, playing a Vietnamese. Nothing followed, and Tina studied dramatics with Sandy Meisner and acted in an occasional off-Broadway play, meanwhile working days as a blood researcher. She played a small role as Arlo Guthrie's girl-friend in the film Alice's Restaurant, then came the tryout for The Hawaiians.

"My agent called up about it, and the Mirisch people said, 'Oh, we've already looked at her,'" she said. "They had me confused with another Chinese actress named Tisa Chang."

"I went to see Mr. Mirisch and he gave me a script and I read for him the same day. They flew me to Hollywood for a test and two days later they told me I had the role."

TAKEN FROM LIFE

Bill Cosby in his new Bill Cosby Show television series will pattern his role in the comedy show after some of the athletic coaches he knew and admired back in high school in Philadelphia and at Temple University.

showing locations. A good many of the pictographs are on private property, others can only be reached by boat, and some require travelling on foot in country where there could be rattlesnakes.

Pictographs are rock paintings. They are done by using an iron oxide, fish or animal fat and resin. The resulting mixture is applied with a finger, pad of skin or a pounded shredded stick. The pictographs are usually done on reasonably smooth rock faces, quite often under an overhang. Colors vary from a pale red ochre through to mulberry and almost black.

It is considered that some of the pictographs are trail markers, incantations to the gods for good hunting, part of religious rites, records of a hunt.

There is great variation in quality of the work. Pictographs are found the world over and show a remarkable similarity of theme, but not of workmanship. Ones found in France, Sweden, South Africa and south-western United States are of excellent quality. The world over man is indifferently depicted, but animals which provide food usually have been done with much better workmanship.

There is no average size. Some of the pictures are very small, and some are 18 inches or more in height. Sometimes there will be a dozen individual pictures in one place and there seems to have been little attempt to ally one object with another.

Pictographs in the Interior seem to be deteriorating fairly fast—little can be done with natural weathering, calcification, lichen. Man seems to be the most destructive element. He seems to love to chip, chop, chalk and deface them. We have recorded and measured all these pictographs, so there is a permanent record which has been submitted to the British Columbia Museum in Victoria. It is regrettable that man is the chief destroyer of our heritage of native arts. We must strive toward ensuring that workable protective legislation can preserve these unique rock paintings.

The pictographs are found on both Seymour and Anstey Arm, as well as the main Shuswap Lake. A few at Cherryville are fairly primitive. Mara and Mabel Lake both have excellent groups. The group near Whiteman Creek on the Okanagan Lake is interesting in that paintings sometimes cover one another. A group at Nahun is on a quartz vein on the Fur Brigade Trail. Wilson's Landing has an elementary group. South of Gellatly Point there are several on boulders, as well as some on a cliff. McKinley Landing has two small groups reached from the lake. Commando Bay near Squally Point depicts what could almost be called a hunting scene. At the north end of the Big Canyon a group is on rocks right beside the old lower trail. At Paradise Ranch are several groups of excellent quality. Skaha Lake at the north east end has a group on a bluff—these have been much defaced. DeRenzy Canyon to the east of Skaha has several fascinating groups. Vaseaux Lake on the road in to the east and south has a number of groups including one animal with body completely blocked in color—unusual as most pictographs in this country appear in pure outline. The Inkameep reserve east of Oliver has three good groups. At the west end of the Richter Pass on a boulder are several pictographs. The ones at Keremeos Creek just off the old road, are interesting and in good condition. Boulders at Allengrove and Shingle Creek carry pictographs.

On the Princeton Hedley Road, on and above the old road, are a number of pictographs in poor condition. One of the best groups is near Hedley. Here in a very awe-inspiring setting at the base of an overhanging cliff, are several groups which give an interesting variation in the colors of the ochres used.

These pictographs are all part of our native heritage—it is well that they have been recorded, even if preservation is difficult.

CONDEMN WARHOL MOVIE

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-judge criminal court has ruled that pop artist Andy Warhol's Blue Movie is hard core pornography. Saul Heller, 66, manager of the Andy Warhol Garrick Theatre in Greenwich Village, was fined $250 for exhibiting an obscene film following the ruling Wednesday.

President Nixon takes his visitor, Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand, left, for a short walk around the south grounds of the White House. The two men conferred on future U.S. security plans in the Pacific and East and Vietnam peace prospects.

Taxes May Rise In Manitoba To Pay For Medicare Scheme

WINNIPEG (CP) — Personal and corporate income taxes are going up in Manitoba to pay for medical care insurance.

Increases forecast in the New Democratic Party government's mini-budget Thursday night are aimed at the above-average wage earner and the business world. All become effective Jan. 1.

Finance Minister Saul Cherniack said he plans to introduce legislation increasing the personal income tax, collected by the federal government for the province, by six percentage points to 39 per cent of the federal basic tax. Corporation tax will go to 13 per cent from 11.

The immediate reaction from the opposition led by Walter Weir, premier in the former Progressive Conservative government defeated by the NDP in the June 25 election, was one of gloom.

"It's very interesting to find what was described by the NDP as a have-not province paying the highest income taxes in Canada," he said in a post-budget interview.

OFFSETS DECREASE

The increase in personal income taxes, Mr. Cherniack said, is to offset a reduction in medical care premiums effective Nov. 1 and estimated to cost $11,000,000 by the end of the current fiscal year, March 31, 1970.

The estimated annual cost of the reduction was up to $30,000,000 but Mr. Cherniack refused to speculate in an interview whether taxes would be further increased in his first full budget next spring.

He said the NDP has a policy of financing government services by an ability-to-pay principle and "it is our intention to rely more heavily on income taxes in achieving this end."

Mr. Cherniack said he is satisfied his proposals will meet the province's current immediate financial requirements and "beyond this point we propose to explore a wide use of this ability-to-pay principle."

Home Found For Children

MONTE CARLO (AP) — With the help of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco, singer Josephine Baker has been provided with a permanent home for her 12 adopted children.

Her chateau in southern France was sold this year to pay debts, and she and the children—of various racial origins—had been staying in Barcelona, Spain.

After Miss Baker took part in the Monaco Red Cross ball, Rainier and the former Grace Kelly decided to help her by buying a villa at nearby Roquebrune Cap Martin. Furnishings were provided by the Monaco Red Cross.

The singer and the children moved in Thursday.

HEART HOLDS OUT SLOUGH, England (CP) — Sports buff Cyril Thomas, 57, led an action-packed life until a routine check discovered he had a hole in his heart since born and could have dropped dead at any time. Doctors said it was a miracle his damaged heart had stood the strain so long. Cyril was up a few days after surgery performed a repair job.

SONGS FOR PIGS NOT FOR TOP TEN

LONDON (Reuters) — Farmer Malcolm Eckley's neighbors are annoyed because he disturbs them every midnight by singing his pigs to sleep.

His favorite rendition is a rousing version of Onward Christian Soldiers, which he says relaxes the pigs and makes them drowsy.

Eckley, 32, of Brimfield, central England, now is the target of a petition by his neighbors who say the midnight lullaby sessions might send the pigs to dreamland but keeps them wide awake.

They have handed the petition to the local authorities, who are investigating.

THREAT TO FOREST

VICTORIA (CP) — Scotch broom, a plant with ornamental value, is being investigated as a threat to forestry. Dr. Paul Junker of the University of Victoria said the plant is a menace because it suppresses the growth of conifer seedlings in the entire Pacific Northwest.

Heavy Guard After Bombs

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Police and soldiers today placed heavy guards around key points in the wake of a series of bomb attacks on government and newspaper offices.

The government moves followed seven bomb explosions within the space of a few hours in which four persons were injured. Two other unexploded bombs also were found.

A bomb was discovered Thursday night in the control centre of Telesistema Mexicano, a major television network, police reported.

Thirteen thousand policemen and an unknown number of soldiers were deployed at railway and gas stations, government offices and other strategic installations. They were ordered to join a house-to-house hunt for suspects in the terrorist attacks.

A police spokesman said all the bombs—which were homemade—appeared of the same type.

Foreign Aid Likely Topic At Colombo Plan Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — The controversy over tying foreign aid programs to the commodities and technical skills of the donor nations seems certain to be among the issues raised next month at the annual meeting of Colombo Plan nations in Victoria.

It has long been a sore point with developing nations that grants and loans available to them more often than not must be spent in large measure in the country making the money available.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has described the Victoria meeting Oct. 14-31 as the most important governmental one to be held in Canada since the 1963 NATO conference.

But there have also been hints that the high priority originally placed by Prime Minister Trudeau on expanding Canada's foreign aid program has been reduced somewhat because of other spending needs.

Thus, Canada will likely remain well shy of its goal of spending annually one per cent of its gross national product—the value of all the goods and services it produces—on foreign aid.

The Colombo Plan's other 23 member nations will be awaiting word from Canada on its plans for the association formed in 1950 and extended three times since.

WANTS TIES REMOVED

This year the tied-aid question may receive a new emphasis as a result of U.S. President Nixon's announced desire to remove such restrictions from aid to Latin America in the near future and gradually extend the same policy to other areas.

Almost all U.S. aid now is tied.

The Colombo donor nations are the U.S., Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Britain and Japan. They have contributed $22,600,000,000 to developing countries in South and Southeast Asia since the plan began.

A good percentage of this aid, however, has been tied although officials are reluctant to name a figure because the amounts have fluctuated.

Canada has contributed $930,000,000 through the plan, a loosely-structured arrangement between donor and recipient countries.

The Colombo Plan has accounted for about half the annual Canadian foreign aid budget, $338,140,000 this year.

Until this year, about 80 per cent of Canada's aid has been tied.

But officials of the Canadian International Development Agency—the country's aid-giving centre—say this year only buy the imports a developing country would wish to buy in Canada in any event.

Also, donor governments are able to reassure their electorates that funds spent on foreign aid will be at least partially returned in the form of contracts from the under-developed countries, easing the drain on the balance of payments.

Treasury board and CIDA officials refuse to say what it would cost Canada to untie all of its aid.

DEPEND ON COMPANIES

They say it would depend on how successful Canadian companies are in bidding for contracts in under-developed countries and returning aid dollars to Canada.

Grant Reuber, an economist at the University of Western Ontario in London, has concluded that between 1950 and 1967 tied aid reduced the real value of Canadian assistance by at least five per cent.

His study showed the reductions averaged about three per cent for African recipients, five per cent for Southeast Asia and 12 per cent for Caribbean countries.

Officials in both the external affairs department and CIDA are unusually reluctant to talk about the position Canada will take on the subject at the Victoria conference.

"But as you can see we are tying less and less and I think it's fair to say this is the general trend," said a CIDA spokesman.

LIMEY COWPOKE

HARLOW, England (CP) — An American publisher spent two years hunting for an author to write a mammoth history of Western movies and finally picked addict John Brooker, an Englishman. John, 27, who was hooked on Westerns at the age of four, is interviewing many of the old-time stars for the 1,500-page volume which will have 250 illustrations.

10 Year Guarantee Gimmick or No Gimmick?

Grand-Vue TV Ltd. was formed in 1965 to perform service, and initiated a policy of acquiring top men in the field to ensure that the clientele of Grand-Vue TV would receive the best in service at a reasonable rate.

Grand-Vue set their sights on a goal that could be achieved only by basing the operation on Honesty, Integrity, and offering their clients a guarantee that would insure they get the best.

In line with this Grand-Vue TV Ltd., has from its formation given, and honoured a guarantee on the work they do, and every part put into a client's set is guaranteed for 2 years. Grand-Vue TV then decided that they could offer their clients even more in the retail field by following these same basic principles, and 2 full years were spent in forming the first Grand-Vue outlet, with their goal of offering only the top line of merchandise, and since Grand-Vue is basically service oriented, the best service after sale possible.

By May, 1968, the policies of Grand-Vue had built them an excellent reputation, and a TV outlet was opened at 274.3rd Ave. in Kamloops, and their clients could now obtain Home Entertainment Units they knew they could depend on. By Sept., 1968, it became apparent that this outlet was much too small, and another outlet was opened in the Valleyview Shopping Centre.

It was soon realized that should Grand-Vue wish to continue giving the quick, efficient service that their clients had come to expect from them that a priority system had to be developed, and thus it became company policy that any repairs required by a new applicant for Grand-Vue service, would be handled on a time available basis.

In Aug., 1969, Grand-Vue was asked to provide the same service to the citizens of the Kelowna area, thus on Sept. 15th, 1969, the Kelowna Branch on Highway 97 N., across from the Mountain Shadows Golf Course was opened. And for the first time, Kelowna area residents were offered the best in TV Sets and our 10 year colour picture tube guarantee.

As has been the practice of Grand-Vue since its formation, all Guarantees must be honoured. Guaranteed funds are set aside in trust, for our Ten Year Picture Tube Guarantee with Northwest Life Assurance Co. Ltd. and Federated Investments Ltd., Store 27, Shops Capri, Kelowna.

Grand-Vue TV realizes that a color TV set is a major investment, and will probably be the most complicated piece of equipment you will ever own, and feels that any single item such as this warrants professional handling.

Grand-Vue TV Ltd. invites all to visit them so you can see, and compare before you invest.

P.Q. Commission Ready To Study Language Set-Up

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec commission of inquiry Thursday outlined its tasks and objectives as it prepared to study the position of the French language and language rights.

Commission Chairman Jean-Denis Gendron, 44, vice-dean of the faculty of letters at Laval University, told a news conference the commission will tackle the assumption: "French is threatened in Quebec."

Established during the heat of the St. Leonard school crisis last fall, the five-member royal commission opens public hearings Sept. 29 in Montreal. The commission's mandate, Prof. Gendron said, is three-fold:

—To inquire into and submit a report on the position of French as the language of usage in Quebec.

—To recommend measures to guarantee the linguistic rights of the majority as well as the protection of minority rights.

—To recommend measures to guarantee "the full expansion and diffusion of the French language in all fields of activity in Quebec."

RIGHTS GET PRIORITY

The general line of inquiry may take its cue from questions asked by people in trade, industry, finance and unions, but the problem of language rights in the education system will be studied as a priority item, Prof. Gendron said.

Hearings will be held in the shadow of the continuing St. Leonard hassle. The east-end Montreal suburb already has been shaken by a riot over the issue of eliminating English-language instruction.

In June, 1968, the suburb's Roman Catholic school board embarked on a policy of abolishing English-language education. Bilingual Grade 1 classes were eliminated in September, 1968, and Grade 2 English-language instruction disappeared this fall.

Government members have disagreed on how to approach the issue which English-speaking Quebecers see as a challenge to the tradition of freedom of choice in language of instruction.

The French-only education drive is spearheaded by the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire, which won control of the St. Leonard school board in June 1968. It favors making English the second language of instruction in the province.

Prof. Gendron said he did not know how long it would take the commission to reach a consensus on the conflict. It is scheduled to report to the government by Dec. 9 but this would amount to only "a report on our activities."

VISIT FACTORIES

The commission's moves have included the appointment of economist Henri Munn of Montreal as director of research, compilation of existing documents on language problems, and the start of a program of visits by commission members to factories and even private homes.

The commission will try to determine whether the present state of affairs are "political, economic, cultural, demographic, educational, external or international, geographical, sociological."

Prof. Gendron added that there would be studies into Quebec's birth rate and on the impact of immigration. Statistics show that the birth rate in Quebec is declining.

At the same time, statistics show that immigrants who settle in Quebec province usually opt for English-language schools.

These two factors lead many French-Quebecers to fear that their language and culture may wither and die, Prof. Gendron said.

He said that members of the business community have shown great interest in the inquiry, as shown by the fact that "75 to 80 companies" have agreed to appear at the public hearings.

Happy Days For Developers May Be Needed Now In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Office buildings are still rising like spring dandelions around Parliament Hill but the days of vine and roses may be over for developers.

This summer, while public servants impatient to get into new quarters stewed, Arthur Laing held out for seven weeks to force rentals in several new buildings below $4.50 a square foot.

One by one the developers, who had hoped for rentals approaching $6 a square foot, saved in.

"That day, I saved $11,500,000 in rents," says Mr. Laing, whose mandate as public works minister is to be tough.

The real estate boom began here in the mid-1960s when the growing public service spilled out of old quarters into more and more rented space.

One result is that slum dwellers now are paying $180 a month for substandard downtown flats—hundreds of low-rental walk-ups were demolished in the boom—and the government is spending $18,000,000 a year for rent.

EXPLORES NONSENSE

Ottawa, Mr. Laing said in an interview Wednesday, has become "a great inflated bag of state nonsense."

He hopes to let some air out of the bag by:

—Keeping the rental tab below $4.50 a square foot, —Building in Hull, Que., across the river, —Doing more building than take the pressure off prices here.

One hold-up is Hull's lack of water and sewage treatment facilities. The government may have to build a small temporary plant to avoid further pollution of the Ottawa River.

RENT SHOP SPACE

The first two floors of the Hull building will be rented as shops and boutiques to help pay building costs.

"There is no reason a federal building should be dark between 4:30 p.m. and 9 a.m.," says the Vancouver businessman.

The capital budget of public works may be among the few areas of federal spending to increase as the austerity freeze deepens. But Mr. Laing says the money goes mainly into development across the country, places like:

The Strait of Canso, where a Gulf Oil refinery will invigorate needy Cape Breton; Matane, Gros Cacouna and Chandler, Que.; for harbor facilities; the Alaska Highway, 25 miles of which will be paved to handle the 60-ton trucks carrying lead and zinc from the new Anvil mine.

The North, where oil is lighting a fire under the frozen economy; due for completion next year.

"These are fundamentals," says Mr. Laing, "We'll increase spending in these areas."

As for Ottawa, more utilitarian buildings and "no Taj Mahals."

CANADIAN BRIEFS

FOUND GUILTY

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Assize Court jury Thursday found James Larden of Vancouver guilty of manslaughter in the shooting death of James Werssen during a drinking party Dec. 30. He was remanded to Sept. 26 for sentencing by Mr. Justice D. R. Verchere. The jury recommended leniency. Larden was originally charged with non-capital murder.

ROOKIE RAPPED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gerald La Plante, a former city police trainee Thursday was convicted of posing as an undercover drug investigator to gain confidential information from the RCMP for a private investigation firm. Provincial Judge John Layton was told La Plante was discharged from the city police academy Feb. 24. Judge Layton rejected a defence plea for a suspended sentence and fined La Plante $500.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER
(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the six of diamonds, on which South plays the king. How would you play the hand?

♠ A 10 8
♦ A K
♣ A Q 7 5 2

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Five Clubs and North leads the jack of diamonds. How would you play the hand?

♠ A 10 8
♦ A K
♣ A Q 7 5 2

1. You cannot fail if the clubs are divided 2-2 or 3-1, so your one and only concern should be a 4-0 division. True, this will occur in only one deal out of ten and you might therefore dismiss it as just a remote possibility, but that is not a very healthy attitude to take.

The proper approach is to ask yourself, "What can defeat me?"—and then implement that thought with any measures you can think of to guard against an unfavorable division of the opposing cards.

Thus, in the present case, with a 4-0 club division in mind, you know that there is nothing you can do if North has the missing four clubs, but that there is something you can do if they are in the South hand.

Accordingly, after winning the diamond lead, you play a low club to the nine at trick two. If North shows out, you lose to the ten but that is the only club trick you lose. Your A-K-8 later traps South's Q-J-7. Of course, this method of play will cost you a 30-point trick every time the suit is divided 2-2, but that is a very minor consideration.

2. Win the diamond and draw both missing trumps. Then cash another diamond, lead a heart to the ace and return the queen. However, the cards are divided, you are sure of the contract.

Suppose South wins the heart with the king. He must return a spade; otherwise, you get a ruff and discard. If he plays a low spade, you follow low to assure only one spade loser; if he plays the king or queen of spades, you win with the ace and again can lose only one spade trick.

If North wins the heart with the king, he also must return a spade, and, regardless of how the suit is divided, you lose but one spade trick.

It would be wrong to attempt a heart or spade finesse because you could be defeated if the cards were poorly placed. The suggested method of play guarantees the contract 100%.

Tory Record A Poor Lure In Ontario

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government of Ontario put its record on the line in a provincial byelection Thursday and lost to the New Democratic Party.

Voters in the Middlesex South constituency that includes part of the city of London rejected a Conservative and Liberal to elect an NDPor, Archdeacon Kenneth Bolton, 62, of the Anglican Church.

Middlesex South had been held by a Conservative for the last 20 years.

With all 153 polls reported, Archdeacon Bolton had 8,206 votes to 6,830 for Conservative Walden Allen and 6,714 for Liberal David McDonald.

The result left the government of Premier John Robarts with 68 seats in the 117-seat provincial legislature. Liberals hold 28 and the NDP 21.

The Middlesex South vacancy was the only one in the house and resulted from the death last Feb. 11 of Neil Olde.

As far as anyone could diagnose political ailments, the Conservatives' defeat seemed to be due to the provincial government's medical insurance plan, changes in tax assessments, and programs for regional school boards that could bring tax increases.

OUTDOORS

A Slow Start For Big Game

The big game season got away to a rather slow start last weekend in our local game management area. There were a few buck deer reported taken, but not as many as was expected. I have heard of three bull moose being taken in the Bear Creek and Peachland areas.

There is snow on the high alpine areas like Greystoke and Big and Little White mountains, which will start the deer that summer on these high ranges down to lower altitudes.

There have been no reports of local elk taken, but a few have come back from the East Kootenays, and some of the meat has been spoiled by the very warm weather at the start of the season.

To my thinking these early opening big game seasons at this latitude are wrong and not necessary. In late August when the seasons opened here the weather was very hot and a fair amount of the game meat taken was lost to the warm temperatures, blow flies and the wasps which were very numerous this summer. No one would begrudge a little later opening of the big game seasons, into the first or second week of September, when at least the nights cool down, giving the meat a chance to cool out.

The grouse season has been above average with quite a number of birds taken in the many grouse areas in the district. Blue grouse are definitely greater in numbers than last season, but Willow grouse seem spotty. More Willows will no doubt show up on the district roads as the weather changes. This always seems to be the pattern with the Willows.

The mountain sheep season opens this Saturday in GMA 6 when rams with a 3/4 curl or better will be legal game. The sheep season in the Fintry area stays open this season till Oct. 5. This is a longer season than usual. East of Okanagan Lake and River the sheep season closes Sept. 28.

The migratory bird season also opens on Saturday the 20th when ducks and geese and snipe will be legal birds. A great number of local hunters will be out to test their skill with the scatterguns. Duck Lake no doubt will be the focal point and it will be interesting to see what the geese there do.

One group in Kelowna that deserves recognition and credit is the Kelowna and District Search and Rescue Organization. The hunting season is only two weeks old but already this group has had two full-scale searches, travelling a total of 640 miles and work in excess of 525 man hours on those two searches. The members of the search and rescue are all volunteers and are not remunerated for their time, gasoline or equipment. Their sole purpose is to help the unfortunate hunter or hiker who becomes lost or injured. We in this area are extremely fortunate in having such a keen, organized and wide-awake group to call on in such emergencies. Very often it could be a matter of life or death for the unfortunate lost person.

This group over the past approximately five years that they have been organized have through various means obtained some very much-needed equipment such as the extremely loud air horn which is used at every search in the hills; a special trailer for transporting injured persons on rough roads, a number of walkie-talkie units which are used in communications between the searchers, and many other small items which are needed to conduct proper systematic searches.

To respond more quickly to any emergency the group has found an urgent need for a four-wheel drive vehicle of their own. A fund for this purpose has been started by generous donations from the Kelowna Lions Club, Kelowna branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, the Kelowna Yacht Club, the Independent Order of Foresters, the Knights of Columbus. Further donations from service clubs, and individuals are hoped for and as it looks like a busy season ahead they hope to be able to get this vehicle for this season. I personally can say this group is very deserving of your help.

Now a few safety hints from the Kelowna Search and Rescue group:

1. Before going hunting always let someone at home know the area you are going into.
2. Be prepared for the bush—take a compass, a map and know how to use them. The search group do have classes in this.
3. Always take matches—in waterproof containers, whether a smoker or not.
4. Be warmly dressed in suitable clothing and footwear. The lost hunters this season spent very miserable nights out because of this.
5. As you enter the bush take note of the direction you are going to hunt and the direction of the roads in the area.
6. Carry food and emergency equipment, a small piece of old inner tube is very good to get a fire started, especially if the timber is wet, a light plastic sheet is also very useful.
7. Allow yourself plenty of time to get out of the bush before dark.
8. Take along plenty of ammunition.
9. If you suspect you are lost, don't panic. Stay where you are and build a fire. This will conserve your strength and you will be much easier to find, if you stay put instead of wandering.
10. The international distress signal of three shots five seconds apart will alert other hunters in the area.

By following these basic rules you should have a safe outing and spare yourself and your family the worry and distress that the careless outdoorsmen bring upon themselves. The classes for instructors for the teaching of the Junior firearms course of the Fish and Game Branch will be held in the George Elliot School in Winfield on Sept. 23-24-25.

Instructors for this course will be trained from Vernon, Winfield and Kelowna. Some 20 applicants have been or will be notified. Any other persons wishing to help with this very important training are asked to contact Mr. Sid Gowland of the Adult Education, Kelowna Secondary School, Harvey Ave.

These instructors will then in turn hold classes in firearms safety, game identification and related subjects in hunting. No doubt in the near future any person getting their first hunting licence will have to pass such a course. These will be mostly junior hunters but there are many adult hunters who could do with such a course. Safety in hunting can not be stressed too much.

Ken Wharram Satisfactory After Slight Heart Attack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kenny Wharram, a veteran of 13 seasons with Chicago Black Hawks, suffered a slight heart attack in hospital Thursday night, just one day before the Hawks start their 1969 National Hockey League exhibition schedule.

Wharram, a 36-year-old right winger, entered hospital Monday with pericarditis, inflammation of the membrane enclosing the heart.

A club spokesman announced the heart attack and said hospital officials described Wharram's condition as satisfactory. The Hawks were scheduled to take on Minnesota North Stars in their first exhibition encounter tonight in Duluth, Minn.

Other games tonight have St. Louis Blues battling New York Rangers at Kitchener, Ont., and Los Angeles Kings meeting Oakland Seals at Oshawa, Ont.

The Blues nailed down their first exhibition victory Thursday night with a 5-3 score over Toronto Maple Leafs in Ottawa. Ab McDonald led the Blues with two goals with Al Arbour, Camille Henri and Ron Anderson adding one each.

Jacques Plante and Ernie Wakely shared goaltending duties for St. Louis, allowing goals by Norm Ullman, Jim McKenney and Bob Pulford.

JIRIK PLAYED LITTLE

The Blues made little use of Jaroslav Jirik, who played with the Czechoslovakia national team last season. Jirik, 30, appeared for only three turns on the ice and was dumped several times by Leaf defenders.

In Monday's game, the Blues announced they will use almost the same lineup that won them the Stanley Cup when they meet Boston Bruins in the first pre-season match at the Forum Saturday night.

Assistant general manager Floyd Curry said the Canadiens will dress all regulars except Gilles Tremblay, who only started to scrimmage Wednesday. The left-winger has been recovering from a respiratory ailment that sidelined him for most of last season.
